An Overview Of Pennsylvania Agriculture

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—Agriculture is Pennsylvania's leading industry, and Penn's Agri-Women again hosted a luncheon of good food produced in Pennsylvania for legislators and their aids. The event happened in the capitol rotunda on Wednesday as part of the National Agriculture Day.

Pennsylvania's 54,000 farm families annually produce $3.54 billion in crops and livestock, thereby stimulating $38 billion in related economic activity.

Employment

Farms create employment for nearly 20 percent of Pennsylvania's workforce. The percentage includes producers and growers, food and fiber processors, as well as those providing the machinery, supplies and services essential to farm production

Farm Income & Cash Receipts

Cash receipts in 1989 from farm marketings totaled $3.54 billion, an eight percent increase from the previous year. Pennsylvania ranks 9th nationally in cash receipts for livestock and livestock products, and 19th overall for total cash receipts.

Pennsylvania's 1989 net farm income was $1040.2 million, up 26.5 percent from the previous year. This was an average of $19,263 per farm. Off-farm income, for members of operator's households only, totaled $1.2 billion.

Nutrient Management Bill Receives Unanimous Support

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania farmers will most likely be spelling out exactly what they will do with manure wastes from their livestock, in the not-too-distant future.

In addition, farmers will also have at least one new acronym to memorize — AEU. It stands for Animal Equivalent Unit and could very well become a part of the common vocabulary of all farmers.

The reason for these anticipated changes is because state leaders apparently are getting very close to an acceptable law covering the handling of fertilizers and nutrient-heavy wastes.

At least that seems to be the consensus of opinion and testimony from representatives of six statewide agriculture agencies and organizations, the Chesapeake Bay Foundation and the Department of Environmental Resources (DER).

They provided testimony on Tuesday at a public hearing on state House Bill 496, a proposed nutrient management law.

The 2½-hour public hearing was held by the state House Agri-

Fertigation Becomes Viable As Nutrient Law Looms Near

ANDY ANDREWS

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Any day now, Pennsylvania farmers could be faced with laws that may directly affect how they apply nutrients to their crops.

But some vegetable and nursery farms are already taking steps to more accurately regulate the amount of nutrients they apply to the soil.

One of those methods, for vegetable and fruit crop farmers, is a method called "fertigation" — irrigating and fertilizing at the same time — through underground drip lines.

That method, when used precisely, can reduce the application of fertilizer up to 50 percent. It can also reduce the levels of pesticides up to 90 percent. And the irrigation alone can save more than half of the total water used for the crop.

Uniform crop

In the case of one Lancaster Co. nursery that has been using the method extensively, fertigation has led to a more uniform crop that is more successfully transplanted.

Using drip irrigation to fertilize and apply pesticides has been in use, at least in California, since 1964. Only in the past 10 years or so has the idea taken seed in Lancaster County.

"The great thing about fertigation is that it's immediately available," said John Gault, who operates Gault Nursery Corp. in Conestoga, Pa. "You've got no waste, you've got no runoff, and it's one

ELLIOTT CITY, Md.— The awards banquet of the Maryland Holstein Convention was held at the Turf Valley Country Club, hosted by the Howard County Holstein Club.

The Maryland Holstein Association prides itself in the accomplishments of their youth and awards many trophies and scholarships to encourage the youth to attain even higher goals.

OPINION

National Agriculture Week

Every day is national, state and local ag day for us. But it is fitting that the rest of the nation celebrated Agricultural Day on Wednesday to honor America's providers.

Agricluture Day is a national observance which honors farmers by directing attention to the important contributions they make to our economy and way of life.

Agriculture can take credit for our high standard of living. Since a country's economy is build on an agricultural foundation, a productive ag system frees the labor pool for the development of industry, technology and services.

Although the amount spent for food has risen, food spending as a percentage of personal income has declined over the past decade, leaving more money for savings and other expenditures. According to a letter from Boyd Wolff, Pennsylvania ag secretary, food spending was just 14.7 perceont of disposable income.

Our farmers are so efficient that people sometimes forget what a production miracle our food and fiber system really is. Year after year, we rely on our farmers to produce more and more food for a growing world population. But farmers only receive 25 cents from each food dollar, and the cost of farming continues to rise year after year.

We are pleased to honor farmers every day of the year. And we certainly want to add our voice of honor during National Agriculture Week.

To Plan For Oat Planting

I know some farmers are considering the use of feed oats for planting this spring, but this may not be a good idea. Feed oats may contain quackgrass, bindweed and other weed seeds.

Planting feed oats will generally result in lower yields. You also know the problem that any weed seeds planted will be a problem for years to come. Keep in mind that high quality seed is the smallest part of producing a crop. So, saving a few cents by using inferior or weedy seed doesn't make much sense. On the other hand, homegrown seed of varieties proven successful on your farm can be cleaned, treated and planted if the germination is 80% or better. You can place the seed in a tray with moist soil, cover with wet burlap and keep in a warm place. Then count the seeds that germinate against the total and determine the percent of germination.

To Care For Your Pastures

Are your pastures a source of good quality forage, and do they promote good herd health, or are they a source of parasites, poisons and disease? How productive your pastures are depends largely on how well you manage them. Here are a few hints.

Lime and fertilize in accordance with soil test results. Control weeds by frequent clipping and by the use of herbicides. Remove toxic plants or fence animals away from them. Introduce more-productive and more-nutritious species of grasses and legumes into the stand, and create compacted soils.

Divide the pasture into four or more paddocks so you can practice rotational grazing. If acreage is limited save it for the animals that need it the most and if necessary, limit their access time. Be prepared to offer animals additional feeds when pasture growth declines. When pastures are lush, harvest the excess growth as hay. Keep parasite loads low by deworming animals three weeks after the start of the pasture season, again three weeks later and a third time, after they came off pasture. Drain, or fence animals out of wet areas to help prevent foot problems.

To Evaluate Winter Wheat Topdressing

During this season of the year many farmers ask the question, does winter wheat need fertilizing? According to agronomists, topdressing with fertilizers may or may not be a good idea. There are several things that should be considered before making the decision.

In the first place, do not topdress winter wheat with nitrogen fertilizer if the wheat is to be overseeded with clover or alfalfa. Nitrogen causes heavy growth of wheat which may smother out the new seeding.

On the other hand, winter wheat fields that have come through the winter looking thin, should be topdressed. Use only a straight nitrogen fertilizer, such as urea. Topdressing winter wheat with phosphate or potash has not given any increased wheat yields.

Apply the nitrogen fertilizer in early spring at the rate of 30-40 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre.

To Join 4-H

All across the county 4-H clubs are reorganizing. Each club meets between six and eight weeks, teaching a skill such as cooking, crafts, leadership, sewing, woodworking, animal care and much more. Four-H Clubs are run by adult volunteers who have a skill they wish to teach. Any youth regardless of race, religion, sex, national origin or handicap, that are between the age of 8 and 19 is eligible to join the largest "out-of-school" program in the nation. For more information on the club closest to you in Lancaster County, contact Zoann Parker, 4-H Agent, at 394-6851.

Farm Forum

Dear Editor,

I want to express my concern about raising tobacco, after reading your front page article in the March 16 issue that asks for more tobacco acreage. Most certainly it is legal to raise tobacco, but is it moral to raise a crop that is reportedly causing harm to many tobacco users and even children who inhale the smoke in the room.

My point is simply to ask potential and current tobacco growers to think about what they are a part of, and to find ways of saving their farms, without causing others to lose their lives prematurely.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS

March 24, 1991

Background Scripture:
Matthew 25:31-46.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 119:10-16.

Up until a few minutes ago I was wrestling with what I felt was a strong obligation. Tomorrow is the day our church serves a Christmas meal to several thousand people in Dallas, as well as distributing clothing and toys. Last year my wife and I found it a very meaningful day and were looking forward to participating again this year.

But this has been one of those weeks — we've worked longer, gotten to bed later, gone out more frequently, and gotten further behind in weekly tasks — like getting out this column and another one we write together. Today, I fell farther behind and I'm burning the midnight oil in order to get this in tomorrow morning's mail.

An Obligation

So, I was beginning to see tomorrow's event as an obligation that was hanging over my head and I have been rationalizing with myself as to whether I would be justified in skipping it this year. I had pretty well decided to do just that, when I sat down to write this piece on the Parable of the Sheep and the Goats.

This is always a shattering bit of teaching, but tonight it had really shaken me. The final judgment is portrayed as a division between the sheep and the goats. The sheep will go to the King's right hand—the place of favor—while the goats will be relegated to the left hand—the place of disfavor. And the basis for that division of the sheep and the goats has nothing to do with what donomination we choose, the church we attend, what creeds or doctrines we subscribe to, the church offices we hold, etc. What does matter is that we have responded to our opportunities to feed the hungry, welcome the strangers, clothe the naked, visit the sick and those in prison— in short, to help those who needed help, as Jesus indicated in the Parable of the Good Samaritan.

Of course, in the parable, Jesus puts it on a personal basis: "For I was hungry and you gave me food, I was thirsty and you gave me drink, I was a stranger and you welcomed me, I was naked and you clothed me, I was sick and you visited me, I was in prison and you came to me" (25:35,36). Those whom Jesus condemns for not doing these things want to know: "Lord, when did we see the hungry or thirsty or a stranger or naked or sick or in prison, and did not minister to thee? (25:44). They are protesting that they never had the opportunity to do any of those things for Jesus.

The Least Of These

Jesus' reply shakes us as much as it must have shaken them: "Truly, I say to you, as you did it not to one of the least of these, you did it not to me" (25:46). There's no good in protesting that we haven't had the opportunities, for, in truth, every time we see our neighbor in need was an opportunity to minister to Christ himself.

How serious is that? Very serious, for in the parable the King says, "Depart from me, you cursed, into the eternal fire prepared for the devil and his angels." In other words, if we fail to grasp our opportunities to serve Christ through our neighbors, we will have separated ourselves from God.

I have made up my mind not to miss the opportunity that awaits me tomorrow. I can't afford to. Can you?

PARADISE TOBACCO SALES

We remain dedicated to the farm community!

WE FEEL TOBACCO FARMERS THAT WANT THE HIGH DOLLAR FOR THEIR TOBACCO SHOULD GROW 609!!

We are concerned about hurting the reputation of our good 609 by the buyers blending too much Type 41 with 609 tobacco.

Remember the buyers were only trying to fill their orders with pounds of tobacco. The processor will frown at the poor yield.

If you didn't get our spring newsletter, call in to get your name on mailing list. Also, call if you need 609 seed.

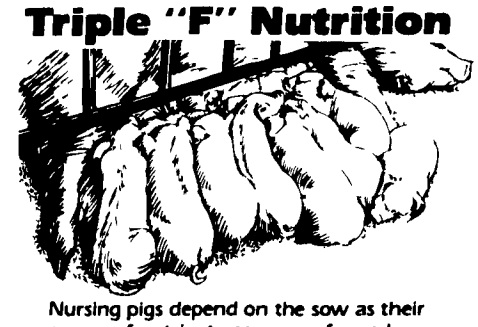
Boost Sow Performance With Triple "F" Nutrition



Nursing pigs depend on the sow as their source of nutrients necessary for early growth.

A balanced Triple "F" sow nutrition program based on full-fat, extruded soybeans increases the fat content of sows' milk and boosts the total milk production by the sow as well.

This improvement in lactation performance pays off with heavier, healthier pigs weaned into the nursery.

David Grove of Washington County and Amy Iager of Howard County received awards for first-year record books. Junior Girl Record Book Winners were Kelli Savage, Kelly Myers, and April Hall. Junior Boy Record Book Winners were Mark Iager, Darren Wolf, and Robert Sigler.

Kelli Savage and Mark Iager will receive a $100 Patrick Hoff Memorial Scholarship for placing first juniors in record book. Senior Girl Record Book Winners were Cynthia Fell, Tanya Iager, and Laurie Zimmerman. Senior Boy Record Book Winners were James Allen, David Lenhart, and Len Pieper. Vivian Stottlemyer was the recipient of the Overall Trophy of 4-H Club members. Vivian was part of the Dairy Bowl Team and selected as one of 12 distinguished junior Holstein members at the National Convention contest.

Guest speaker for the evening was Horace Backus, who recently published a book on the history of Dunloggin Farm that had its home in Howard County.

Backus said, "Why did I write the book? Because I wanted to read it." Paul Misner snapped on the lights for Dunloggin by featuring their cattle on the back cover of the "Holstein World."

"It was a great herd, but what Misner did helped put them in immortality magazine," said Backus. Misner proved what he could do for Joseph Natwick and they became a team.

One of their bulls, Dunloggin Master Stroke, had eight excellent daughters, 27 or more daughters with more than 100,000 pounds of milk. Three daughters were five times grand champions at the Maryland State Fair from 1946 to 1950.

When going to Blue Ribbon Sales, Natwick would stay at the Avalon around the corner and do his bidding by phone.

Along came war years. Labor became difficult to find and they couldn't keep the cattle the way they wanted to, so they decided to sell. There was a great crowd that wartime September in 1943 to witness a sale far beyond its time.

Two hundred fourteen head of cattle averaged $1,800 — this was $600 more than the average of any previous sale. By the next day the Associated Press wires carried the sale results all over the United States. They were also featured in "Life" magazine.

Backus asked those who were in the audience who attended the sale of Dunloggin in 1943 to stand. Three acknowledged that they were there. Dunloggin lives on today in the pedigrees of many Holsteins.

Keys To Dairy Success Outlined

EVA MARTIN
Maryland Correspondent

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. — Dr. Raymond Hunter, president and corporate executive officer of Masstock Southern Holdings, Inc., Montezuma, Georgia was the guest speaker at the Maryland Holstein Convention held at the Turf Valley Country Club.

Hunter, a native of Ireland with a degree in agricultural economics from Queens University, Belfast, Northern Ireland, shared his "Keys to Success in Dairy Farming."

Given in order of importance, he listed management, stockmanship, nutrition, health and fertility, genetics and facilities. He believes that in managing a large-scale dairy operation, critical factors are managing people, grouping of cows, and good equipment.

Hunter explained that at Masstock, they have branched out into specialized areas of management. There is a foreman for milking, a foreman for feeding, another for health, one for fertility, one for young stock and dry cows, and another for crops.

Masstock's Georgia dairy facility consists of three dairy units, a 3,300 cow unit, a 1,450 cow unit, and a 950 cow unit. These cows are grouped on a nutritional basis. Four rapid-exit herringbone parlors are in use at Masstock: a double 24, double 20, double 19, and a double 16.

Freestall barns housing these groups are flushed and the solids and liquids are separated. The solids are sold for garden composting, while the liquids in the lagoons are spread on the cropland for fertilizer or recycled for flushing again.

Body condition is an important part of their nutritional policy. They like to have their heifers calve at 24 months of age weighing about 1,400 lbs. and at a height of 56 inches. After calving, cows and heifers are kept in a separate group for about two weeks so that regular checks can be made to keep up with uterine health.

The next group consists of the main herd where they are fed a high density ration. This is also where heat detection and insemination is done. "At approximately 120 to 130 days, the cows are either moved into a pregnant group or, more often, a bull is turned into that group," Hunter said. "At that stage of the lactation, it is more important for us to get a cow pregnant than to worry about the quality of the calf that she is going to produce."

Masstock operates a crop farm of 1,750 acres, of which about 1,300 is corn and alfalfa. About 300 acres are double cropped with Sudex and about 200 acres triple cropped with rye for feeding heifers. Additional corn silage and hay is purchased, some from Nebraska, Kansas, Idaho, and Bermuda.

With facilities at the bottom of the list, Hunter said, "Forget about facilities until you have everything else in order. Getting your stockmanship and feeding right today is what is going to make money in the short term."

Hunter suggested that proper planning of facilities is of utmost importance because of their long-term use and investment. Some factors to consider are design for comfort; labor efficiency; ease of movement for animals, machinery, and people; and cost effectiveness.

Horace Backus was evening banquet speaker at the Md. Holstein Convention.

Management Hints

Purchased feed costs may be reduced on some dairy farms by sharpening buying skills. The cost:price squeeze due to lower milk prices and rising costs in the non-feed sector have resulted in a serious cash flow problem for some dairymen. These farmers should consider maintaining reasonably low feed inventories to make more cash available for other needs. If a surplus of forage or grain exists, this could be reduced to a reasonably safe level by cash sales as a hedge against possible weather problems this coming growing season. Hay and forage markets may be stronger than grain in some sections of the country.

Good buying habits start with good knowledge of feed and ingredient markets. This requires obtaining prices on comparable products on a similar basis from at least three sources periodically.

Preferably get proposed rations, if you are depending upon your feed supplier for nutritional assistance. Once feed prices and expected daily feed costs are obtained, dairymen may then make allowances for dependability of service, quality, differences in effectiveness of nutritional assistance, contributions to the local economy etc.

The cheapest feed source may not be the one finally chosen. However, purchases that do not consider price at all can be costly ones since appreciable differences in price exist in most areas.

Check prices at least quarterly, if not monthly or more frequently. Being price-conscious helps to keep prices more competitive and may avoid unnecessarily high feed costs that can reduce operating margins, particularly on items bought in volume, such as feed and fertilizer.

Vintage Steer Model Replaced

VINTAGE (Lancaster Co.)—The black steer model that stood in front of Vintage Sales Stables along Route 30 has become a red, white-faced steer. It all started last year when someone stole the black fiberglass model, and the mascot has never been seen again.

So, now, at the time of the 15th anniversary celebration Tuesday, a steer model again stands guard over the weekly auction activities.

"The black steer model had a lot of sentimental value," Robert Frame, owner of Vintage Sales Stables, said.

In the early days, we had a large group of directors, and the only thing they ever unanimously agreed upon was the purchase of that black steer. "After it was stolen, we heard from people as far away as Florida who had read about our loss in Lancaster Farming. But we never saw our steer again."

The new steer is in place, this time with hooves anchored in concrete. The Frame family hopes the statue is unmovable and stays in place this time.

At the anniversary celebration sale, a free lunch was served to 250 farmers. Sale prices were good. Some 690 pound feeder steers brought a record price of $1.01 per pound, and a Holstein bull brought 70 cents per pound.

Frame said the auction business has followed the farming business. As the number of farmers decrease, the volume of cattle, hogs and calves has also decreased. The highest number of cattle was sold in 1977. But since that time the number of head sold has decreased each year until 1990 figures show only half the 1977 number of head sold.

"We have seen a reduction in numbers because we have fewer cattle farmers," Frame said. "Of course we have lost a lot of packers too."

One of the services that Frame initiated when he purchased controlling interest in 1976 was calf grading. About 800 to 1000 calves are graded each week by a representative of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. In addition, commissions for cattle have been reduced. Now the first 11 head of cattle in a consignment are commissioned at $8.00. Each additional head costs $7.00.

The Frame family is involved in the business. Robert Jr. is in sales; Glenn is barn manager; Paul weighs the cattle and Denise is office manager.

Irwin Martin and Ken Hershey are field representatives and Howard Scarff is a feeder representative.

of the cheapest forms, as far as I know, of (applying) fertilizer."

Gault manages about 100 acres of shade and ornamental trees for the wholesale market at the company's headquarters in the rolling hills of .southwestern Lancaster County. In 1985, a drip irrigation system was applied on Farm 1, about a half mile north of the main location. The first farm incorporated about 20 acres, including numerous varieties of shade and flowering trees.

Jim Roberts, Roberts Irrigation, San Marcos, Calif., spoke about the importance of nutrient management through drip irrigation at the 1991 Pennsylvania Vegetable Conference in Hershey.

Injector pumps

On Farm 2, in 1988, a drip irrigation system was installed and 30 more acres of trees planted. The system uses injector pumps with a five-zone eletromechanical controller. In 1989, a third farm with an additional drip irrigation system was installed. Soon, more trees will be planted there.

In all, Gault is growing about 1,100 trees per acre on a 10 x 4 center, 40 square feet per plant. It cost them about $10,000 to get the system set up — roughly $1 tree or $1,000 per acre.

The drip irrigation lines are incorporated into the gullies left by disc tilling. The lines, made of flexible polyvinyl chloride (PVC), contains "microflapper emitters" that offer precision water flow and keep the pores from clogging.

According to Gault, the electromechanical controller 'tells the solenoid to come on to water that zone automatically and it also tells it to fertilize automatically." The company uses hydrometers and manually checks them on a periodic basis to determine what amounts of water to apply.

Good water

Fortunately, said Gault, "we're blessed with good water." Farm 1 has access to 150 gallons per minute. Farm 2 can pump up to 50 gallons per minute and Farm 3 about 30 gallons per minute.

A nutrient solution of 30 percent nitrogen is pumped into the system, using a system developed by Trickl-Eez, based in Biglerville, Pa. Gault is satisfied that further potash and phosphorous requirements are met because the land used to be old farmland, with plenty of manure already applied. Yearly soil tests show that other nutrients besides nitrogen are readily available to the trees.

"The main thing irrigation does in our industry is provide you with a uniform product," said Gault. "What that translates to is, a customer can be confident with uniformity and quality."

Gault said, before the drip system was installed, many customers arrived at the site to tag trees because they did not want lopsided or damaged products. But since the installation of the system, each crop is more uniform, and customers feel confident that the trees they select will be consistent.

Denser root system

The fertigation system also provides a denser root system. "So when you go in and transplant the tree, you're going to have this much more fibrous root system that allows better transplantability and also shocks the tree less, so it's

made with fiberglass, the material of the future — and proven in the past —

The Fiberdome chute is designed and engineered to be installed on most types of silos. Its structure allows it to withstand the toughest beating the weather elements or silo unloading systems can possibly dish out.

The chute is constructed in full 7½' sections to minimize the number of joints. Connecting joints have a 2½" tongue and groove design to keep feed in and water out. The large ribbed construction adds stability and strength.

Fiberglass is durable, corrosion-proof, attractive and translucent, allowing sunlight to pass through. Sunlight quickly dries interior moisture in the chute. The hard gleaming gelcote surface will remain for many years.

quick to recover," he said.

Gault said that many growers have misconceptions about drip irrigation. He said that people believe the tree is pampered and may go out to a landscape situation and "suffer."

Gault said, "In fact, the exact opposite is true. The tree is shocked less when it's transplanted and it's got more roots, so it's quicker to root out into its new home and re-establish itself and be a contender in the landscape."

Growers can actually save money over the installation cost, which Gault estimates to be about $1 more per tree. But plants can be brought to market 25 percent to 35 percent earlier, he said. And losses because of drought stress without irrigation can range from 7-10 percent on an annual basis.

Losing less

"With irrigation, we're losing less than 1 percent annually," he said. "And if you're lining out 10,000 trees, at $10 a piece, and you're saving 10 percent, it's quick to pay for itself. And you're going to be coming to market not only in 25 to 35 percent less time, but with 25 to 35 percent more product than with traditional methods."

Each station is equipped to first fertilize and then irrigate. The fertilizer is applied a small amount on a daily basis. Different amounts can be relegated to different sites, so each tree can be grown to specific uniformity. "And you don't have to depend on Mother Nature to get it washed into the root zone or wash it away."

Gault said that through proper timing of the fertilizer through the irrigation system, "you can push several flushes of growth from May until July for top growth. We'll fertilize, say, the middle of October till the middle of November to get caliper growth, and then again in February. It's going to give you more of the girth of the tree to 'balance out.'"

Effective way

"Drip irrigation is the most effective and efficient way you could possibly irrigate," said Jim Roberts, Roberts Irrigation, San Marcos, Calif. Roberts spoke recently at the 1991 Pennsylvania Vegetable Conference about the benefits of using drip irrigation.

He cautioned that some of the legislation pending or already passed in California (which has required fruit and vegetable farmers near him to pay fines that have forced many of them out of business) could also happen in Pennsylvania.

"I'm telling this to caution you," he said. "If the label says four ounces per acre, don't put on six. Because they've got ways to monitor that now and they'll likely find out that you didn't follow the label. We saw farmers do that in California and they're literally out of business."

Roberts said, by using drip irrigation, nutrients are fed through the system in "very limited amounts. And if you're doing it right, you're going to monitor the needs of the plant and you're going to adjust the fertilizer accordingly."

100 tons of tomatoes

In results of several tests, growers in Roberts' area achieved 50 tons and, in some cases, up to 100 tons per acre of tomatoes using drip irrigation.

Also, pesticide and fumigant applications to the soil offered more exact results. The nutrients applied helped greatly extend some crops.

Roberts recommended that a media filter be used if the water used to irrigate may be dirty. Also, acids to clean the system and to keep the pores open are necessary. But the acids (phosphoric and sulphuric) are also important elements to the plants.

Roberts said that farmers in this area should keep an eye on California, because farmers may face the same type of legislation in the future. In once case, farmers in California are also responsible for what they apply. When a chemical dealer sells to a farmer, a record of what is sold must match what the farmer applies, or farmers face stiff fines.

Small basis

"You better try the drip method and try to find out what it will do for you," said Roberts. "I would suggest you try it on a small basis, till you find out how to manage the system."

Roberts said that "one of the things I think is extremely important for all of you today is to realize your responsibility in this whole area," he said. "Read the labels, learn how to apply these chemicals, and make sure we do not create any more problems."

"We are, in this area, blessed with tremendous topsoil and everything," said John Gault, of Gault Nursery Corp. "And the rainfall has been good.

"There is too much going down to the Chesapeake Bay through the watershed area here," he said. "We only have one world here. We really beat the heck out of it for a while. But I think we have to get smart about it."

EPDs, Calving Ease Go Into Sire Selection

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Saying that Traveler is a big achiever is an understatement. The 13-year-old Angus bull became a record breaker for American Breeder Service (ABS). It had an excess of 50,000 semen units drawn from it in 1990, making it number one in total sales and the heaviest used bull in their Angus breed.

And it was a combination of looking for the right "package," including expected prodigy differences (EPDs), calving ease, and stacking the pedigrees that garnered the progeny of the the bull such acclaim, comprising five sons in the ABS lineup for 1991, according to an ABS beef specialist.

The specialist, Doug Frank, who conducts bull sire selection for ABS, emphasized the importance of looking at several critical factors at a meeting for 35 ABS beef producers Tuesday night.

"The EPD we prioritize the most would be light birthweight or calving ease," said Frank. "If we have to choose between a high-growth bull and a light birthweight bull, we're going to take the light birthweight every time. Hopefully we can get a mixture of those."

Selection basis

Frank said that ABS selects, for the Angus breed, bulls that are less than +2.0 pounds for birthweight. The basis for selection is on ABS experience with calving and data prepared by the Meat Animal Research Center Breed Program.

But in terms of calving ease, only part of it is caused by genetics, said Frank. "There's a lot of other factors that can be attributed. Maybe it's abnormal presentation, those kids of things."

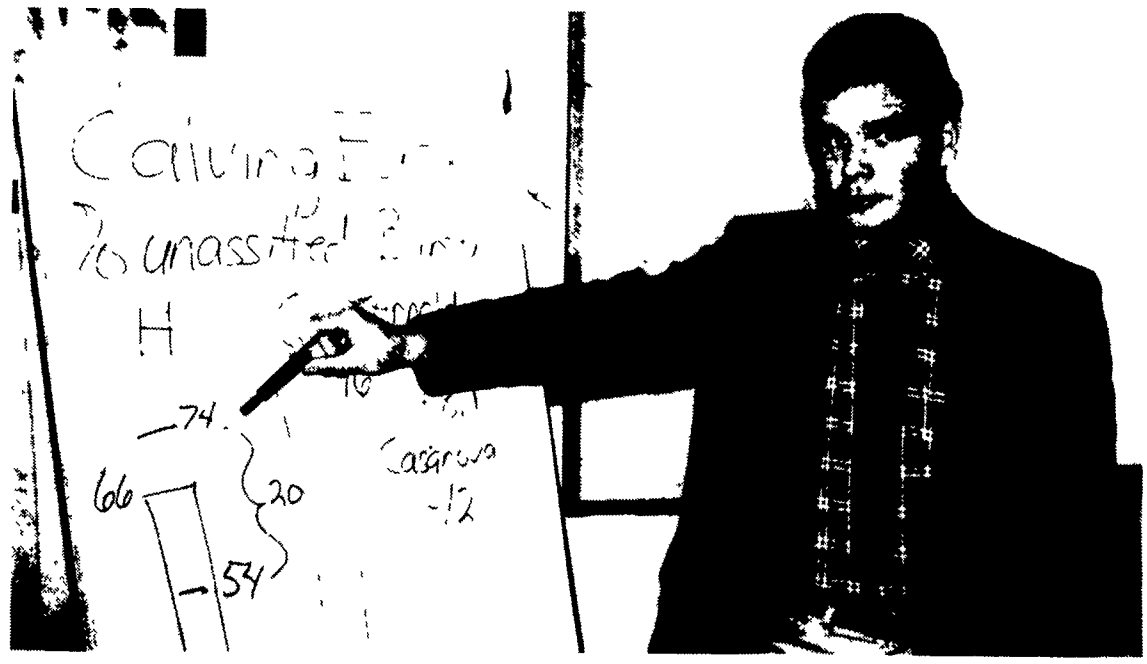
In most cases, calving ease can be attributed to only 50 percent genetics. Twenty-five percent can be controlled through sire selection.

Only about ⅔ (66 percent) of births for all breeds is unassisted. ABS is trying to breed to improve the unassisted births.

Trait combinations

Also, in looking at a particular sire, other considerations, such as a combination of traits (maternal ability and calving ease) go hand in hand. The maternal qualities include teat and udder quality in daughters, frame size, birthweight, flushing ability, and other factors.

"We're looking for multi-dimensional bulls," he said. "Bulls that can do a lot of things well."



Sire specialist Doug Frank, who conducts bull sire selection for ABS, emphasized the importance of looking at several critical factors at a meeting for 35 ABS breeders Tuesday night.

ABS is looking for bulls that can put "specific packages" together, said Frank. EPDs are some of the better indicators, and looking at past progeny helps greatly in the selection process.

Light birthweight has more advantages, despite what some people believe, according to Frank. "The first thing you think is they're not going to grow," he said. But the contrary is true — some progeny at low birthweight gain well.

Selection information

Information for the selection comes from producers, said Frank. He receives letters from the field and investigates the pedigree and

Md. Holstein Association Holds Convention

Maryland Correspondent

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. — "The people we have working within our organization who are willing to give their time and energies to chair our many committees are our greatest asset," said Marlin Martin, president of the Maryland Holstein Association during the association's annual convention at the Turf Valley Country Club.

Each committee chairman gave a report of their activities conducted during the past year. National Director Marlin Hoff also addressed the session.

Donna Myers, chairperson of the nominating committee, conducted the election. Election results were Marlin Martin, president; Oren Bender, vice president; Jack and Vicki King, secretary-treasurer; Thomas Remsberg, Delvin Mast, Steve Wilson, Ken Holland, state directors; Judy Iager, Carl Bender and Roy Crow, state directors; were not eligible for re-election and were presented certificates of appreciation of their meritorious service to the State Holstein Program.

Progressive Breeder Registry Awards for 1990 were presented by Thomas Dum, consultant from the National Holstein Association. To be eligible for this prestigious award, breeders must be in the top 30 percent of their area and 70 percent or more of their herd must carry their prefix.

Maryland Breeders receiving this award were:

• Wayne E. Schrock 1 yr.

Jeff Myers, chairman of the breed improvement committee, presented the production awards along with a slide presentation of each farm receiving an award.

Production awards are based on energy corrected milk (ECM). The ECM formula takes into account the protein and fat when adjusting the milk for components. This formula will help to identify cows and herds that produce high volumes of milk solids. The ECM formula is 7.2 x lbs. protein +12.95 x lbs. fat.

The 1990 Maryland Holstein Production Award Winners are:

• Jr. 2-yr-old, Pintail Point Farm, Queenstown, Woodbine-K Rotate Estella- ET, 26,464 ECM, Remsburg Sales Service Trophy.

• Sr. 2-yr-old, Maple Dell Farm, Woodbine, Rom Mandingo Deena, 31,638 ECM, Harry Roach III Trophy.

• 3-yr-old, O.C.S. Dairy, Jefferson, O.C.S. Dairy Val Cathy, 35,877 ECM, Whitelyn Farms Trophy.

• 4-yr-old, O.C.S. Dairy, Jefferson, O.C.S. Dairy Val Phil Patty-Z, 32,658 ECM, Glad-Mar Farm Trophy.

• High Herd over 90 cows for milk- DHIR, Harmony Farm, Federalsburg, 116 cows - 25,349 ECM, American Breeders Service Trophy.

Thomas Remsberg, chairman of the resolutions committee, presented a resolution to include a junior 3-year-old class at the 1991 Maryland State Fair, which was passed by the membership.

The women enjoyed craft demonstrations by Eva Martin, Bonnie Remsberg, and Marysue Jacobs. Eva had a kit prepared for each lady to make their own necklace out of material that was designed with Holstein cows.

Marbles were inserted into a tube of this material and fastened with beads. Even those who thought they couldn't make one were proud of their accomplishments and wore them during the convention.

Bonnie Remsberg gave a report on the background of the art of cutting and piercing lampshades. She showed how to cut out lampshades, create and design our patterns, then use cutting blades and punches to work out the design. Three dimensional effects can be created depending on the sculpting of the design. Bonnie also makes and sells these beautiful and unique lampshades, many with farm scenes.

Gemini Florist representative Marysue Jacobs gave pointers on flower arranging with live and silk flowers. She pointed out that dead flowers should be removed often from your arrangements as they give off ethylene gas which causes the other flowers to also die quicker. This also applies to houseplants. Removing dead leaves gives longer life.

It is not recommended that you place your corsages or arrangements in a refrigerator, because vegetables also give off this type of gas. When picking flowers, the best time is in the morning, cut a fresh stem and place in warm water. Flowers for dry arrangements, such as baby's breath, larkspur, and delphinium can be grown in your own garden and hung to dry.

Leamans And Greenleafs Honored At Lancaster Conservation Banquet

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.)—The Lancaster County Conservation District held the 40th annual dinner meeting this week, and honored several farm families who have special conservation plans.

Charles and Janet Leaman, Ronks, received a special cooperator award for their self-designed conservation installation and Martin and Judy Greenleaf, Oxford, were named the outstanding cooperators for 1991.

Both the Leamans and the Greenleafs received a color farm portrait.

Ross Leaman signed up as a cooperator with the district in 1943. In the original conservation plan it states that the farmer is to build 5000 feet of diversion ditches with the tractor and plow, and to maintain diversions and 60' filter strip above each in grass or alfalfa. This idea is being used today for the terraces on this farm. Ross put contours on the land in the 1940s. He always left a four foot sod dead furrow on the low spots. Two terraces were installed at that time using a Martin ditcher.

Charles, Ross's son has lived on the home farm all his life. He started farming in 1951 and purchased the farm from his father in 1959 when Ross moved off the farm. The cropping pattern has not changed substantially in the past 38 years. Presently he farms 55 acres corn, 8 acres alfalfa and grass, and 5 acres soybeans. The remaining acreage is in meadow and farmstead to make 90 acres.

The first 19 years they raised 5,300 chickens and 60 steers. In those days all the work with the chickens was done by hand. During their second phase they raised 300 pigs farrow to finish (600 during 1972), and the 60 steers. The last three years the Leamans have been crop farming, but they do rent their meadow to the neighbor.

Even though there are no animals Charles used no fertilizer this past year (not even starter). He realizes the value of manure and gets all he needs from two of his neighbors. He is concerned about

An Overview

Pennsylvania farmers in 1989 were $2.97 billion, an increase of 8.4 percent from the previous year. Total farm debt in 1989 totaled $2.2 billion, with $1193.2 million toward real estate and $984.7 million toward other debts.

Farmland

Farmland in Pennsylvania totaled 8.2 million acres during 1989, with an average farm size of 152 acres. Harvested cropland totaled 4.21 million acres. The average value per acre of farmland, with buildings included, was $1,911 in 1989, eighth highest in the country.

Productive farmland is being preserved in Pennsylvania through the purchase of development rights from farm owners with proceeds of a $100 million bond issue approved by voters in the state. To date, $7.8 million has been spent to purchase easements on 2,801 acres on 30 farms.

Seventeen counties have farmland preservation programs, 11 counties are developing programs, and 25 counties have allocated local funds to bolster the effort.

Land must first be enrolled in a local agricultural security area, which now encompass one million acres of prime Pennsylvania farmland.

Dairy Industry

The dairy industry is Pennsylvania's leading agricultural segment. Pennsylvania ranks fifth nationally in milk production, contributing 6.9 percent of the U.S. supply from its 13,200 commercial dairy farms (those with 10 or more cows). The state's milk production for 1989 was 10 billion pounds, down two percent from the record high production of 1988. The costs of producing milk in Pennsylvania averaged $12.52 per hundred pounds during 1989, compared with $12.23 during 1988.

Pennsylvania ranks second nationally in the production of ice cream, ice milk, milk sherbet and total frozen dairy products. Pennsylvania plants manufactured 73.6 million gallons of ice cream, 23.1 million gallons of ice milk and 4.6 million gallons of milk sherbet last year.

A total of 4.55 billion pounds of whole milk was used to manufacture dairy products in Pennsylvania in 1989. Butter used 33 percent of this total, frozen dairy products accounted for 27 percent, with cheese and other manufactured products using 40 percent.

Livestock Industry

The value of all cattle (beef and dairy), hogs and sheep on Pennsylvania farms at the end of 1989 was $1.5 billion, up 8 percent from the previous year. Red meat production in Pennsylvania's commercial slaughter establishments totaled 1.02 billion pounds, an increase of six percent from 1988.

All cattle and calves in the state totaled 1.89 million on January 1, 1990; hogs and pigs totaled 975,000; and sheep and lambs totaled 134,000.

Poultry Industry

Pennsylvania poultry producers set new production records for turkeys and broilers during 1989. The combined value of production from broilers, eggs and turkeys, plus the value of chicken sales in 1989 was $546,268,000, a 25 percent increase over 1988.

Inventory of all chickens (excluding broilers) on Pennsylvania farms at the end of 1989 was 23,800,000 birds with a value of $41,650,000. Broiler production was valued at $203,171,000, up 16 percent from the previous year, with a record number 127.7 million broilers produced in 1989.

Turkey producers raised a record 8.4 million poults during 1989, compared with 7.9 the previous year.

Pennsylvania laying flocks produced 5.2 billion eggs, valued at $257,240,000. An average of 19.5 million hens layed an average of 268 eggs each during 1989.

Fruits & Vegetables

Pennsylvania's production of both fresh market and processing vegetables for 1989 was 176,630 tons, up 34 percent from the previous year. Vegetable yields increased for every commodity between 1988 and 1989, even though total harvested acreage dropped 4 percent. The combined value of both fresh and processing vegetables increased by 50 percent during 1989 to $63.2 million.

During the 1989 growing season, Pennsylvania fruit crops experienced poor weather conditions and a 30 percent decrease in production. Utilized production of the major fruit crops — apples, peaches, pears, sweet cherries, tart cherries and grapes — totaled 261,400 tons in 1989. Actual cash receipts from Pennsylvania fruit production totaled $91.6 million.

Exports

Agricultural exports from Pennsylvania were valued at $270.3 million during the last federal fiscal year, up 13 percent. The state ranked fifth in exported dairy products and tenth in exported hides and skins, poultry products, animal fats and prepared fruits.

Per Capita Consumption

The American consumer is more health conscious today than at any time in history. However, convenience is still a top priority in the consumer's selection of food products. Agriculture and the food industry are working hard to respond to those needs with research and development of leaner meats, higher fiber and lower sodium food products, ingredient labeling, etc.

The national civilian per capita consumption of major food commodities in 1988 was: 115 pounds of meat; 15 pounds of fish, 88.1 pounds of poultry and eggs; 257.8 pounds of dairy products; 108.9 pounds of fresh and processed fruits; 270.5 pounds of vegetables; 154 pounds of grains; and 63.6 pounds of fats and oils.

Farmers Are Efficient

American farmers today produce 80 percent more crops on an acre of land than their fathers did. And one hour of farm labor today produces 16 times as much food and other crops as it did in the 1920 period. New technology has made these gains possible. The productivity of the land now depends upon the skill and knowledge with which capital is applied. The bigger the volume that farmers can raise and sell, the lower the product cost per item. So United States consumers gain from increased farm production.

An American farmer now provides 128 people (94 in the U.S. and 34 abroad) with food and fiber. By rough estimates, a farmer in China provides for 3.5 people and a farmer in the Soviet Union provides food for 11 people.

Pork Delegates Vote For Checkoff Increase

DES MOINES, Iowa — The National Pork Producers (Pork Act) delegate body has determined that the national legislative pork checkoff rate should be changed to .35 of one percent of the value of each marketed animal.

The 164 delegates, representing pork producers and importers from 46 states, voted recently by a margin of 85 percent to formally seek implementation of the increase in the checkoff rate no later than January 1, 1992.

The action came during the annual meeting of the Pork Act delegate body in Denver, Colo.

The present checkoff rate, .25 of one percent of the market value of an animal, has been in effect since the national legislative checkoff started in November 1986. In 1990, the checkoff generated more than $31 million in revenue from U.S. pork producers and importers of pork products. It is estimated that the new rate, when it goes into effect, will generate an additional $10-12 million per year.

The decision by the Pork Act delegate body to increase the pork checkoff rate followed months of careful consideration and evaluation by a number of producer-run national and state pork industry organizations, individual producer input, and deliberation by a long-range resource development task force.

Schwartz Becomes Lancaster Co. Extension Director

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — In the life of the new Lancaster Co. Cooperative Extension Director, there have been three people who have influenced him the most: Albert Shriver, Duane Duncan, and Jay Irwin.

It was their policies, their personalities, and their lives that gave direction to the life of Dr. John H. Schwartz, who will take over the duties of the retiring Jay Irwin on May 1.

"Agriculture was those guys' lives," said Schwartz. "They, to me, received a lot of satisfaction in seeing people achieve things. And they always stood in the background and always had other people out there achieving success."

Duncan, now Cumberland Co. Extension director, was a 4-H leader in Adams Co. when Schwartz was a 4-H member. Albert Shriver was a Vo-Ag Teacher at Gettysburg High School when Schwartz was a student. Those two men shaped him in learning agriculture, and Irwin was a role model for the new director when Schwartz became a county agent in 1971 — Irwin was Chester Co. extension director at the time.

Skills on job

"A lot of the skills that I observed and learned from (Shriver and Duncan) are a lot of the skills that I have used on the job ever since I graduated from college," he said. "They were very successful skills that helped me get through college, to learn and achieve the things I did in college, plus taking and using those skills and those role models in being an agent."

Schwartz said that Irwin "had one of the best management styles around," which encourages specialized talent working in cooperation on common goals of the extension office. According to Schwartz, that style involves surrounding "yourself with the best people possible and you let them do their job," he said.

"I'm not worried about the day-to-day activities of the agents," he said. "I want to have agents that I can trust that we can agree on what we want to get accomplished for the year, what we want to get accomplished for the next 4 or 5 years, and then just periodically meet to see how we are meeting those goals and objectives."

Schwartz began his career with Penn State Cooperative Extension in 1970 as 4-H agent and coordinator in Chester County. From 1975 to 1982 he served as agriculture agent in Adams County, with program responsibility for poultry, farm management, agronomy, marketing and animal science.

Announced appointment

Dr. Paul Wangsness, director of the capital region of Penn State Cooperative Extension, announced the appointment of Schwartz after the meeting with the Lancaster County Extension board this week.

"I am very pleased that Dr. Schwartz will be our new Cooperative Extension director in Lancaster County and will become a part of the administrative team for Penn State Cooperative Extension," Wangsness said. "John's broad training and experience will be a definite asset as we consider the needs of Lancaster County and strive to provide continued relevant educational programs and assistance to the citizens in the region."

Since 1988, Schwartz has been an extension agent responsible for educational programs in commercial poultry production in Lancaster, Lebanon, York, and Adams counties.

Schwartz earned his Ph.D. in animal science from the Colorado State University in 1985. He also holds B.S. and M.Ed. degrees from Penn State. He served two years on the faculty at Clemson University and worked in agribusiness in Colorado in 1984-1985.

A member of several professional societies and organizations, Schwartz has served on various boards and committees. Most recently, he was named chair of USDA Livestock, Poultry and Aquaculture Waste Management Priorities Workshop Committee. He has received professional recognition at both the state and national levels.

Strong aspects

As for what he intends for the Lancaster Co. Extension Office, Schwartz will continue to emphasize the strong aspects of the county's agriculture.

"One of the challenges . . . is keeping everybody informed where we're going, what we're all about, and moving toward a common goal," he said. "And Jay has been very masterful at building what I think is an excelllent team and excellent rapport among the staff."

Dr. John H. Schwartz

Schwartz said, "We've always been considered the poultry county," he said. "Lancaster has always been the number 1 poultry county in the state."

But Schwartz will not devote the energy of the office entirely to the poultry industry. "I'm going to be concerned that all segments of agriculture are equally served," he said. "I'm not going to be strictly, you know, it's poultry or nothing but poultry. A county extension director has to be an advocate for all of agriculture. I think we need to see a balance."

Best agents

Schwartz believes that the Lancaster office has some of the best agents in the country. That talent and experience has contributed to the success of Lancaster County agriculture.

"It's the willingness of this agricultural community to share experiences and knowledge even with competitors," he said.

"What's unique is this multi-generational agriculture," he said. "We have families that have been in agriculture in this county for 10 generations. There's a closer tie to the land here than you'll find in a lot of other places.

"We're going to be clientele-driven," he said. "The reason for the Cooperative Extension is to help the people here in the county to achieve a better standard of life. We encourage the staff here to be looking at ways to develop programs to meet the needs of the people and to help them solve their problems."

Schwartz said that he would like to look back when he retires and hear people say "how Extension helped to achieve a better quality of life."

Nutrient Management Bill

cultural and Rural Affairs Committee.

Because of increasing animal density on farms (brought on by the need for increased production and efficiency), and increased human populations, water quality has decreased significantly within the state.

In order to be able to track nutrient production and application, whether responsible or irresponsible, state leaders have been working to create a law which would mandate responsible use of fertilizer.

And although the specifics in the proposed law now deal with farming and livestock production, the law is being crafted to address all sources of nutrients — residential and industrial, as well.

The legislation, HB 496, is a result of combining ideas contained in two separate proposals introduced by Rep. Jeff Coy and Rep. John Barley, months ago. It also includes suggestions from a select governor's committee which reviewed the need for nutrient management.

The new hybrid legislation was introduced in the House on March 11, and was sent to its Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee.

However, procedurally, the proposed law is far from being set in stone. Tuesday's public hearing was to provide a means by which the ideas incorporated in the March 11 bill could be discussed and new ideas presented, if any.

The bill basically sets up a manner by which nutrient management plans are to be made and used on the farm in an effort to control the amount of nutrient excess on cropland that goes into waterways, either directly into surface water or into groundwater.

The intent of the legislation, according to statements made during the hearing, is to:

• Set up a certification program within the state Department of Agriculture (PDA) to qualify those people who will be allowed to create nutrient application plans. This would include farmers who could make their own plan and those who would perform the service for others. Estimates, based on the existing pesticide certification program, are that it will cost at least $250,000 at the ouset, based on late 1980s dollar values. That money is not in the state budget.

• Set up the local conservation district office as the office responsible for filing and/or approving plans.

(Roughly estimated costs for additional personnel were about $500,000 annually, not necessarily needed during the initial years such a law would be in effect.)

• Create regulations for the handling of nutrients. The existing Soil Conservation Commission (SCC) would create the regulations.

• Create an advisory board to review and comment on regulations, criteria and policies created by the SCC.

• Create a statewide law that could not be made more stringent by local municipalities.

• Require DER to assess the amount of non-farm, non-point nutrient contamination going into water and how well it is being controlled. This would mean that DER will be attempting to figure about how much of the nutrient pollution is coming from residential areas (from yards as either lawn or tree fertilizer or from septic systems), from storm sewers, and from the air, such as acid rain.

• Create penalties for noncompliance with a nutrient managment plan. A civil penalty of not more than $500 for each offense is in the bill as of Tuesday.

The legislation also creates a new way to compare farming operations — through the AEU rate per acre.

According to the legislation, one AEU would equal the mass of animals which would weigh 1,000 pounds. It is a measure of animal density.

The reason an AEU was established was to have a way to link manure-production capabilities of a farm to its manure-using capabilities.

One AEU could represent one Jersey cow, 333 chickens at 3 pounds each, or five 200-pound hogs.

If a farmer has 100 acres of cropland onto which he spreads manure, an animal density rate of one AEU per acre would mean he would have 100 Jersey cattle (averaging 1,000 pounds each).

The law does not limit animal density, but it does provide "red flag" AEU levels. Specifically, a farmer can have up to 2 AEU per acre in livestock other than poultry, without having to get a certified plan reviewed by the conservation district. For poultry operations, the review cutoff would be 1 AEU.

Any other specifics with the proposed law, as far as regulations, will not be made until the commission creates them, which would be after the law is signed.

Providing testimony on the bill were representatives from the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, Chesapeake Bay Foundation, Pennsylvania State Grange, Pennsylvania Agriculture Industries, Pennsylvania Agronomic Products Association, PDA, DER, and the SCC.

All witnesses testifying during the hearing said they supported the nutrient management proposal.

Rep. Barley asked each representative of agricultural organizations if they were comfortable with the regulation and enforcement of the program being handled through an agency of DER.

All said they were, even after Barley asked the question of them more than once.

One representative said that farmers have had a good relationship with the conservation districts and that perhaps more public education needs to be done so that people know what the conservation district is — it is a local agency that receives federal, state and county funds, and is to a certain extent a political subdivision of state government, it is not directly answerable to DER, county officials, or any one such agency.

And while all who testified offered suggestions for change in the legislation to make it strong and workable, only Walter Peechatka, representing PDA, said his support was conditional.

According to Peechatka, "We feel the sponsors have developed a much improved piece of legislation. If the few remaining concerns we have expressed are addressed, the department (PDA) stands ready to work with our sister agencies and conservation and farm organizations in the implementation of this legislation."

The specific changes PDA wants, according to Peechatka, are:

• One person review. "If a (nutrient management) plan is certified by a person who has met all of the requirements (of certification), does it need to be reviewed and approved by someone else who has been certified?

"Also, we strongly believe that funding will be needed for farmers to implement nutrient management plans. We recognize that some sources are currently available. However, implementation of nutrient management statewide has the potential to be a costly endeavor. Outside funding must be available in order for farmers to implement these plans."

(Some estimates thrown out during the hearing, were in the ballpark of a couple to several million dollars a year for cost sharing projects, but were considered premature, since regulations and requirements will not be established until after the legislation would become law.)

In the 2-year-old cow age group, high protein production went to Matthew Hunsberger; high milk and fat went to Robert Landis.

In the 3-year-old cow age group, high milk, fat and protein production went to Julie Will.

Corey Will received an award for a 4-year-old cow with the highest milk, fat and protein production.

Andrew Lynch had the aged cow with the highest fat production, while a cow owned by Thaddeus Will had the highest milk and protein production.

The award for having the highest selling consignment to the Somerset Fall Classic was presented to Peach Partners.

In other business, Donald Glessner, club president, oversaw a meeting and election of three new directors. Elected were Jeffrey Hillegass, Harry Mosholder, and David Stahl.

National Dairy Panel: Control Supply, Preserve Quotas

PHILADELPHIA — The nation's dairy farmers face a severe economic crisis resulting from the lowest milk prices in 13 years, delegates attending National Farmers Union's 89th anniversary convention were told recently.

Three dairy officials agreed that, while proposed solutions vary, producers throughout the nation share a common interest in controlling price-depressing milk surpluses, protecting Section 22 dairy import quotas at the ongoing international trade talks, and dealing with the threat of Bovine Somatatropin (BST).

Participating in the dairy breakout session were Steward G. Huber, president of the Farmers Union Milk Marketing Cooperative, Madison, Wis.; Jack Rynd, president of Farmers Union Milk Producers Association, Cochranton, Pa.; and Peter Vitaliano, directo of policy analysis of the National Milk Producers Federation, Arlington, Va. The session was moderated by Dallas Tonsager, president of the South Dakota Farmers Union.

Huber emphasized that 1990 Farm Bill provisions for a standby dairy inventory management program "offer the best hope we've got for enhancing our price."

Observing that dairy industry groups have submitted a wide variety of proposals for such a program, Huber said he expects the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) to recommend some kind of a hybrid of the 81 proposals they've received.

"I just hope we don't get so hung up on the specifics that we don't support whatever plan comes," he said.

Vitaliano said, "Dairy farmers everywhere are feeling the disastrous price collapse, and that message is getting to Congress from all over the U.S."

Despite the urgent need for relief, he said Congress is expected to take up to a year to act on whatever inventory management plan is recommended by USDA.

In other dairy controversy, Rynd said milk processors have told his cooperative that they won't accept milk produced with BST.

"Our contracts with the supermarkets say absolutely no BST," he said of the controversial, production-enhancing biosynthetic hormone currently under review by the Food and Drug Administration.

Many producers fear that BST, also know as Bovine Growth Hormone will reduce farm income by increasing milk production and undermining consumer confidence in the safety of milk.

"Our government, by hook or by crook, has always wanted a cheap food policy, and they've certainly done a good job of it," Rynd said. "I look forward to a new pricing structure rather than the current one. I believe it will help us all, especially the producers in the Midwest."

Producers are also deeply concerned about the threat to Section 22 dairy import quotas at the multilateral trade talks in Geneva, Huber and Vitaliano said. They said their organizations have called on Congress to deny President Bush's request to extend current "fast track" authority for U.S. negotiators at the Uruguay Round of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

American dairy farmers will suffer serious income losses from increased imports if the administration succeeds in negotiating away the current waiver for Section 22 dairy quotas at the GATT, the two dairy officials said.

The panelists said that 1992 federal dairy program costs were greatly inflated by USDA's assumption that BST would be approved for commercial use next year.

Citing the reduced budget costs, they urged support for legislation in Congress to repeal the 11 cents per hundredweight dairy assessment set for 1992 in last year's Budget Reconciliation Act. The bills are sponsored by Rep. David Obey (D-WI) and Sen. Herb Kohl (D-WI).

Youth Tractor Safety Meetings Set

MONTROSE (Susquehanna Co.)— Boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 16 must have proper certification if they plan to operate a farm tractor or machinery on a farm. Under the child labor regulations, the law requires that boys and girls between 14 and 16 be certified in tractor safety, and must carry a certification card before they are permitted to operate hazardous equipment.

Some of the hazardous equipment listed in the law include a tractor with over 20 PTO horsepower, corn pickers, hay balers, feed grinders, and forklifts. The law does allow children to operate any equipment that the parent feels is safe for them to operate on their parent's farm without a certificate. The certification process will consist of five meetings for the youth led by an adult volunteer. The meeting time will be spent going over slides, films, videos, worksheets, and a machinery safety manual to give the youth a thorough understanding of the importance of farm safety.

At the conclusion of the meetings, the participants are required to take a written examination, and they will need to demonstrate their safe driving techniques on a driving course. A certificate will be given to the youth after they pass both the written and the driving tests.

Youth that are not yet 14 may take the course, and we will mail the certificate to them after their 14th birthday.

The meetings in Lawton will begin on Wednesday, March 27, and will be on every Wednesday through April. The meetings at Mountain View will begin on Thursday March 28, and will run every Thursday through April. Each meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. and will finish up at about 9 p.m.

The only cost for the meetings will be $2.50 for the handbook.

All American Set

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Obie Snider, president of the Pennsylvania Dairy and Allied Industry Association, recently announced that the Farm Show Complex will be the location of the 1991 All-American Dairy Show. Plans are already in progress for the 28th annual event, scheduled for September 23-26 at the 60-acre site in Harrisburg.

Buoyed by a very successful 1990 show with six national breed shows, four breed sales, and a record $73,155.00 in premiums for more than 400 exhibitors, the board of directors and Show Improvement Committee members are working with show manager Charles Itle on plans they hope will make the 1991 show another "best show ever."

A survey of exhibitors listed several advantages of the All-American, according to Snider, and topping the list are the facilities. "They like the large exhibit area — 14 acres under roof with its convenient location and beautifully decorated show arena. The facility can easily accommodate more than the nearly 2,000 dairy cattle shown last year."

Exhibitors also said that Harrisburg, with its network of interstate highways, is a convenient location for the breeders who come from 28 states and Canada, particularly the Northeast. Also mentioned by the responders was the convenience of the modern 24-stall milking parlor and the opportunity to market the milk produced while showing at the All-American.

There were other items listed by exhibitors. They liked the "freebies" of the All-American: first bedding, catalogs for exhibitors, pictures of winners of sponsored classes, use of wheelbarrows, exhibitor lockers and shower rooms, power washers for cattle, and the morning hospitality hour where donuts, milk, coffee, and morning newspapers are dispensed.

A show of this magnitude cannot operate without the financial support of many groups, Snider said. "Our financial support comes from five sources. Extensive support comes from the state legislature through the Department of Agriculture's budget. This is matched by contributions from class sponsors, special event sponsors, show supporters and the entry fees from exhibitors. This all goes together to make the All-American the top dairy show in the East, and a ranking national show as well."

Nutrient Management

• Certification for everyone involved. "We feel that it is important to insure that everyone who prepares, reviews, and approves plans is certified under the certification program. We ask you . . . to insure that the language will require certification of all those who are involved in the program. Uniformity in this regard will provide program integrity and strengthen the program."

• Expand the advisory board. "We feel that the board should have representation from the key actors in the program (PSU, PDA, SCS, DER, etc.) as well as representation from those who will be impacted. We question whether a nine-member board is sufficient to provide that representation."

• Make the state law supercede and make unnecessary all municipal ordinances address-.ng nutrient management.

Among some additional concerns raised about the bill were to make more specific such things as liabilities, whether bonds would have to be posted, to make sure flexibility is included, to be as easy and practical as possible, and that any regulations allow for developing technologies in either farming or handling of nutrient waste.

Also expressed several times was a concern that the law not establish a need for long term enforcement, but rather include measures to provide education so that eventually, the enforcement of the law would become a vestigal act.

The overall reaction to the proposal, however, was of full support. Several witnesses also urged a quick passage.

Executive director of the Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee, Steven Crawford, said the comments would be taken under consideration, some changes made, and the bill brought up again before the committee for consideration, possibly in April.

examines the maternal and sire aspects in purchasing a bull.

"We like to bring in bulls out of those well-known, well-recognized, popular series," he said. "Partly because we know those bulls aren't going to change."

Frank said ABS is looking for pedigrees "that are stacked for certain trains. We need to try and stack those things as much as we can."

Looks are also critical. "If you got the best EPD cattle in the world, and you can't stand to look at them, you're probably not going to be able to sell them. So we have to have some attraction in the cattle."

Price Named New York Co. Extension Director

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Roxanne F. Price has been selected to be county extension director for Penn State Cooperative Extension in York County. She will succeed Anthony Dobrosky, who retires on July 1.

Dr. Paul Wangsness, director of the Capital Region of Penn State Cooperative Extension, announced the appointment after meeting with the York County Extension Board this week.

He explained the timing of Price's appointment. She will begin her extension director duties on January 1, 1992, after she completes her masters degree while on sabbatical leave for six months beginning July 1. An acting director will be named for that period.

"I am very pleased that Roxanne has accepted this challenging and very important assignment in York County," Wangsness said. "She knows the county and understands the important educational programs of cooperative extension."

Price began her career with Penn State Cooperative Extension in 1974 as assistant extension agent in York County. Her main area of responsibility has been 4-H youth programs. She currently is 4-H coordinator for the county.

In 1986, Price received the Distinguished Service Award of the National Association of Extension 4-H Agents. As a member of this association, she has served on several regional and national committees.

Because of her expertise in youth development and 4-H work, she often serves on local, regional, and state extension committees.

Upon graduating from Dover Area High School, Price was awarded the York County Farm Women Scholarship. She received her B.S. from Mansfield State College in 1975.

cattle for the 1990s, according to Frank, is an animal that has a moderate frame with good muscling and body correctness. One such bull, Enticer, won grand champus Angus at the 1991 National Western Stock Show in Denver, Colo. The bull was heavily muscled, had good structure, and was more moderate in the frame size than other bulls.

In the case of Traveler, the bull also incorporates those "long-term" properties, according to Frank.

"The cattle industry has come a long way in the last 20-25 years," said Frank. The cattle were smaller 20 to 25 years ago. Since then, according to Frank, the industry made a lot of changes.

"In the cattle business, in the end, what we're selling is pounds. We're turning forage into pounds of beef, and that's what we're selling."

pesticide use. And this past year he bought a cultivator so he can cut back on herbicide use. He does spot spraying when necessary. A pond was built in 1965, and a small basin for flood water in 1980, which was enlarged in 1990. Extra drainage tile was laid out by the Soil Conservation Service in 1970.

The most unique conservation measure is the grass buffer strips above the terraces. In 1977 Charles laid out the terraces himself with a hand level and did the installation with his tractor and four bottom plow. The buffer strips serve two purposes. Any detached soil particles are caught in the buffer strip before they get into the terrace. That way terraces do not need to be cleaned out as often. In addition the buffer strips conveniently open up the corn fields. Any soil that gets into the waterways would be stopped in the meadow. Since Charles built the terraces himself, he knows the importance of proper maintenance.

Janet keeps the books for the farming operation, and her son Roger's business. In addition she is treasurer for the United Hospital Auxiliary in Strasburg. They do such things as: make tray favors for patients, baby caps for the newborn, pillows for cancer patients, and raise money through fund raising events. This past year the dozen or so auxiliary chapters presented $151,000 to the Lancaster General Hospital. Janet enjoys doing counted cross stitch samplers. Weddings, births, genealogy charts, and name banners are just a sample of what she works on. She likes doing projects that can't be bought in a store. The Leamans have been operating a guest house for the past 30 years. One party has been there over 50 times. They do well considering the fact that they don't advertise. Part of their house is used to accommodate missionaries who are on furlough. The Leamans attend the Calvary Monument Bible Church in Paradise.

One of Charles's concerns is for all of the soil which leaves neighboring farms and gets onto the township roads (even though he gets their soil). Charles is never finished doing conservation. Each year he is improving or adding to what he has already done.

Martin Greenleaf and his wife Judy signed up with the district April 1976. He has been working with the ASCS office since 1980, when he bought the farm from his father; and he signed up with the Chesapeake Bay program in March of 1987.

His dad plowed most of the farm and had a rotation of at least 50% small grains or hay. To control any runoff at the low spots, he lifted his plow leaving an undisturbed swale. When Martin Jr. took over they decided to grow mostly corn, soybeans, and small grains, which took a different style of management. They had to go from highly labor intensive crops, to highly mechanized cropping. These changes meant putting away the plow and going to no-till farming. He might have plowed 10 acres in the past 10 years.

Martin put in contour strips (requiring fence row removal), terraces, and diversions on the home farm, and in addition does conservation work on five other tracts which he rents. Detail to management and record keeping is a key to operating his farms successfully.

Martin has been soil testing every year since 1982. He looks at trends more than the value of any one year's test. He wrote a computer program to help formulate his herbicide program. Some years he uses as many as eight different spray mixes. Once he decides on what he needs the spray formulas are put out on bids to get the lowest price. Some special weeds require going out into the field with a knapsack sprayer.

Martin and Judy have two children, Wendi currently on the Dean's List as a freshman at Elizabethtown College, and Bob who has a whole array of trophies attesting to his sports abilities. Both of their children do well in school.

Martin is a member of the Solanco Young Farmers, is on the Colerain Township Planning Commission, is a director of the Solanco Fair, and is on the Solanco School Board. In the past he was a member of the Extension Board and was on the Lancaster Vocational Technical School Board. Due to his son's involvement in sports he was a Midget Baseball coach, and on the Football Wrestling program.

Jusy is president of the Lancaster County Society of Farm Women, and secretary of the Solanco Wrestling Booster Association. In the past she has been the PTO president. The Greenleafs attend the Union Presbyterian Church.

The outstanding service awards were given to James Caldwell and Jay and Betty Irwin. Mike Ondik, spoke on the management of and the outstanding qualities of the white-tail deer in Pennsylvania. Don Robinson was the toastmaster.

Lebanon Dedicates Ag Center

Lebanon County dedicated its agricultural center last week, marking a milestone in its committment to supporting its top industry. Representatives from all the agencies housed there — ASCS, SCS, Soil Conservation District, Farm and Home Administration, and extension services — along with county commissioners, state Sen. David "Chip" Brightbill, Rep. Ed Arnold and Rep. Ed Krebs, and representatives of the Lebanon Expo Corporation gathering to make comments. From the left, Dick Kreider, president of the fairgrounds association and William Carpenter, president county commissioner, cut the ribbon officially dedicating the center. State Sen. Brightbill and Rose Marie Swanger, also a county commissioner, applaud. Brightbill donated a Pennsylvania flag to the ag center.

PFA President Says Hasty Solutions To Dairy Price Not The Answer

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — On Wednesday, the leader of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) criticized the "quick-fix artists who are looking for a hasty solution to a complex dairy problem of supply and demand."

PFA president Keith Eckel of Clarks Summit said, "We're deeply concerned about the current financial stress facing many dairy producers and the future of our dairy producer members. However, substituting hastily devised programs which mandate a government-determined price for a market price may distort dairy markets and could cause more long-term problems for Pennsylvania's dairy farm families."

Eckel said, "One such proposal is currently receiving serious consideration in Washington, D.C. While it would bring some temporary price relief to Pennsylvania dairymen, it includes provisions for a nationwide pooling of our Class I fluid milk market.

"This will result in Pennsylvania dairy monies being moved from Pennsylvania producers, who enjoy a favorable Class I utilization, to producers in the Upper Midwest where the percentage of Class I utilization is lower. If this plan is adopted for the sake of temporary relief, it could result in long-term negative consequences for dairymen in the Northeast. If the nationwide market pooling becomes the forerunner of future dairy policy and we begin sharing the East's Class I market with the entire country, then Pennsylvania dairymen will lose an important market advantage forever," he said.

The American Farm Bureau Federation, the nationwide organization to which PFA is affiliated, has gone on record in support of a farmer-controlled, standby milk pricing program for surplus inventory management purposes. Eckel, who is a Farm Bureau board member, said, "Farm Bureau is looking for a workable solution that will get dairymen through the current supply-demand crunch without destroying their future market."

Farm Bureau voted during their March meeting to support a standby milk pricing program that depends on a base excess concept tied directly to commercial utilization and market reserve.

"Farm Bureau will support it only if farmers maintain control," Eckel said, "We are adamantly opposed to a mandatory supply management program."

Under the 1990 farm act, this summer USDA must recommend an inventory management plan to Congress that keeps surplus dairy purchases below 7 billion pounds. Farm Bureau voted to support an inventory management plan, which is directed by a board of dairy producers and is based on pricing excess milk at lower levels than commercial usage, for example a Class 4 price.

The Farm Bureau board also voted to seek repeal of the 5 cents/cwt. dairy assessment which began Jan. 1. The assessment, which is the result of budget deficit legislation, will increase to at least 11.25 cents in 1992 and will remain in effect through 1995. It will cost U.S. dairymen a total of $700 million.

"Here in Pennsylvania, we estimate it will take away about $5,131 from the average dairy farm with 67 cows," Eckel said. "The assessment is a tax increase, but it's worse than a tax increase. What other industry is being forced to accept a tax on production rather than profits? It's a burdensome tax which creates an added hardship for dairymen who are trying to cope with prices that have plummeted to levels at or below costs of production. With some dairymen facing a make or break situation, this unfair dairy tax could exact a greater toll on the farm economy."

PFA and American Farm Bureau are supporting legislation sponsored by U.S. Senator Herb Kohl (D-WI) and U.S. Representative David Obey (D-WI) to eliminate the dairy tax in 1992. An added reason to repeal the tax is because USDA now says that dairy program costs in fiscal 1992 will be less than half of what Congress was told last year during the farm bill and budget debates.

Private Woodland Seminar Held

WARREN (Warren Co.) — The legalities of the trespass law, property posting, land owner liability, woodland rights of way, and timber theft were the featured topics of a seminar for private woodland owners recently organized by Penn State Cooperative Extension. According to Sanford Smith, Warren County extension agent, the seminar was staged to answer many of the questions frequently asked by woodland owners on these topics. The speakers participating in the program were, left to right, David Miller, consulting forester, Allegheny Forestry Inc, Warren, Pa.; Extension Agent Sanford Smith; John C. Becker, associate professor, Penn State University; and Arthur J. Stewart, attorney-at-law, Warren, Pa.

EEC Says Ag Funding Reforms Target Small Farms

PHILADELPHIA — The assistant to the European Economic Community's (EEC) agriculture minister said agriculture cannot be subject to the same rules which exist for industrial goods in the General Agreements on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

Mary Minch told delegates of the 89th National Farmers Union Convention that trade negotiators must acknowledge the structural differences which exist in agriculture around the world. She added that the EEC's agriculture minister is proposing to target farm program benefits to small and medium-sized farms in an effort to reduce its farm program costs.

Minch said the GATT talks have resumed with all parties agreeing to negotiate on domestic supports, market access, export competition, and sanitary and phytosanitary issues. She said last December's breakdown in the GATT talks was technical in nature. If talks are to be successful, she said, all participants must work toward an outcome which is politically, socially, and economically feasible to implement.

She said the EEC is showing a willingness to enforce GATT provisions on equitable market shares because "as internal prices come down in the community due to cuts in internal supports, the amount spent on export refunds would be reduced."

Minch said the EEC is working to reduce its farm program costs as they have become less effective in achieving their goals. However, she said EEC policy recognizes the role of the small and medium-sized farmer in the European economy and environment.

EEC Ag Commissioner Ray MacSharry has submitted an "ambitious" and "revolutionary" proposal to the EEC's Council of Ministers in an attempt to reform the Community's Common Agricultural Policy. Budgetary costs for farm programs have increased by 20% from 1990 to 1991; surpluses are mounting for many commodities, especially beef and dairy; environmental problems from intensive farming are growing; and 80% of the EEC's farm program benefits are received by only 20% of the farms.

Minch said the MacSharry proposal is targeted to small and medium-sized family farms. It also calls for production control by providing support up to a certain level of production and special assistance to environmentally-friendly farming. These proposals would be on a multi-annual basis and negotiated between the commission, its members and farmers.

She said the MacSharry plan also calls for an improved pre-pension plan for farmers, as 55% of the EEC's farmers are aged 55 years and older. Because of lower commodity prices, the plan also calls for supplementing farm income through non-agricultural sources such as tourism.

Farmland Preservation Will Expand

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)— Pennsylvania's farmland preservation efforts will expand this year, Secretary of Agriculture Boyd E. Wolff said recently in an appearance before the House Appropriations Committee.

Wolff outlined preservation efforts to date. He said that more than $67.2 million is available to enable counties to purchase conservation easements and protect valuable farmland from commercial development.

"This program is positioned to protect large areas of productive farmland this year," Wolff said. "Our work to save farmland is moving into high gear."

Wolff said 17 counties have farmland preservation programs. In addition, 11 counties are developing programs, and 25 counties have allocated local funds to bolster the state effort.

"So far, $7.8 million has been spent to purchase easements on 2,801 acres on 30 farms," Wolff said. "Allocations from 1989 and 1990 can still be used by counties, so a total of more than $67.2 million is available."

Wolff said much of the farmland preservation work so far has involved setting up county-level programs.

"During the coming year, the board can shift its focus to actual purchases of easements that will save the land," he said.

Wolff also told the committee members that efficient operation of the Farm Show during the past two years resulted in a 27 percent increase in show revenues with only a 3 percent hike in expenditures.

In addition, Wolff testified that the Department of Agriculture made new efforts to satisfy consumer expectations concerning food safety and the quality of farm products. As a result of those efforts, the department added 15 new food inspectors and conducted 6,000 additional food inspections last year.

The Magic Of Eggshells For Year-Round Pleasure

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

As spring awakens, the sunshine brightens and turns our thoughts to a special season -- Easter. Signs of new life and resurrection are everywhere -- colorful crocuses, baskets and bunnies, fancy dresses, new shoes, chocolate, jelly beans, and kids coloring eggs. Smaller children watch excitedly as colored tablets fizz and sizzle in vinegar and water. They dip to dye their eggs, then wait not so patiently to lift their creations out to show others what they have colored or cracked.

Others, with more patience, prefer decorating eggs in a more lasting way. Marian Barr of Belleville has been decorating eggs for many years and displays them in her china hutch year round. These eggs are shells that have been chiseled, cut, decoupaged or decorated. Marian's tea set consists of four chicken eggshell halves with handles for cups and three small goose eggs which serve as the coffee urn, creamer, and sugar bowl. Her black baby grand piano egg, complete with keyboard and legs, has the eggshell lid propped up with a toothpick.

In her home warmed by a wood fire, Marian told how her interest in egg decoration began years ago while visiting the Beaver Springs Fair.

"There was a lady there from Ephrata who got me interested in it. We went to shows in Ephrata, Washington, D.C., and Phillipsburg, N.J." The shows were quite large with as many as 50 egg craftpersons and dealers selling decorated eggs and supplies.

Many of the eggs decorated and sold at that time were ostrich eggs. "I saw an ostrich egg at the last egg show that had a complete living room scene at Christmas -- a little train going around on a track, and a tiny hole in the floor where a mouse came up. It was all run automatically. They wanted $500 for it."

Marian made her ostrich egg into a Cinderella carriage complete with hinged doors, cellophane windows, wheels and padded seats. Marian bought her ostrich eggs for $10 each (already hollow), but she has seen them being sold for as much as $40 each. Marian's Emu egg, a dark green egg slightly smaller than the ostrich egg, cost $20. She doesn't know if these types of eggs are available now.

Marian works mostly with goose eggs because of the size and shell thickness. "The shell of the ostrich egg is about ¼ -inch thick -- extremely thick - just like porcelain to cut. I use a Sears Little Crafty tool to cut the shells. The ostrich egg was a real challenge, she said.

Marian enjoys egg decorating as a hobby and has given away more eggs than she has kept. The first egg she ever cut, she ended up selling -- reluctantly. "I sold my first cut egg. My eggs were on display at the Mifflin County Library and a minister saw them. He called and wanted to buy one egg. I didn't want to sell any of them so I thought I'd make the price high enough so he wouldn't be interested. I told him $25 and he said, "I'll take it." So I don't have my very first cut egg, which I think was my best one. That was the one I made when I was taking lessons."

Marian's other hobbies include needlework, cross stitch, and quilting.

"I can't remember how many quilts I've made. In the last two years I've made four baby quilts, and two large quilts, one for a wedding present," she said.

Marian and her husband Glenn Barr spend a lot of their time traveling. "We've been in all of the continental United States except for two, Rhode Island and one of the midwestern states," she said. Glenn had worked as an artificial inseminator in Mifflin County for more than 25 years. When he retired, the Barrs held a thank-you dinner for area farmers. Those farmers in turn surprised Glenn and Marian with a retirement trip to the Bahamas.

In her travels, Marian has come across wooden eggs, paper mache eggs, ceramic eggs, and quail eggs necklaces. But rarely does she see eggshells that have been cut, glued, hinged and decorated.

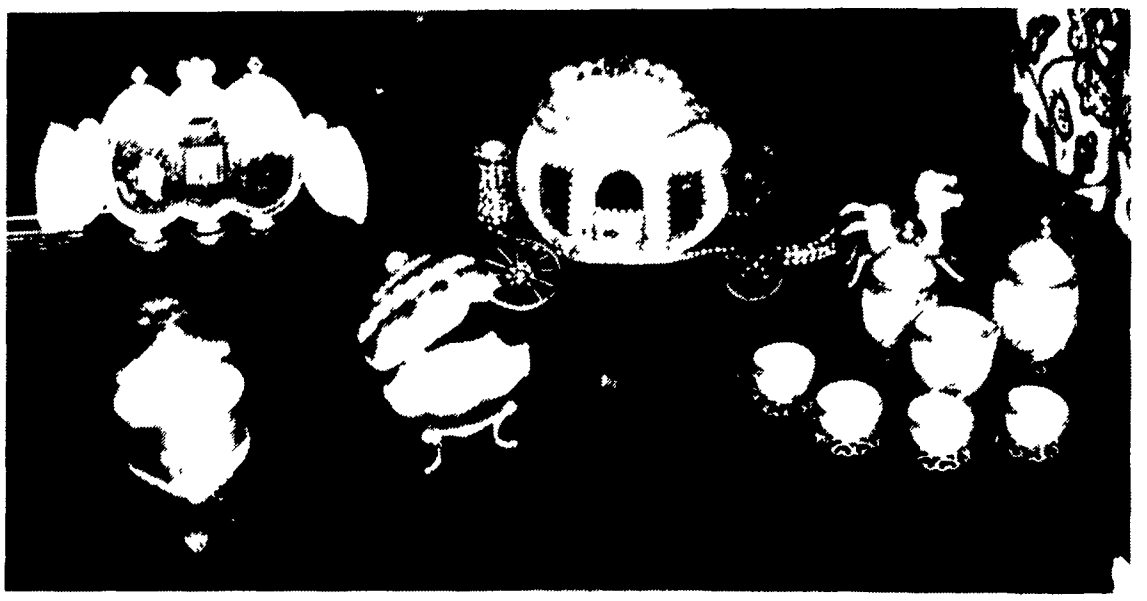
To fulfill one of her lifetime wishes, Marian wants to combine both her hobbies -- traveling and eggs. Marian has always wanted to see a Faberge egg.

"They are eggs that were made for the Russian Czars. And they are fabulous! They were made out of everything -- metal and gold with real jewels to decorate," she said. There is a Museum of Art in Virginia that has some Faberge eggs. I would love to see one."

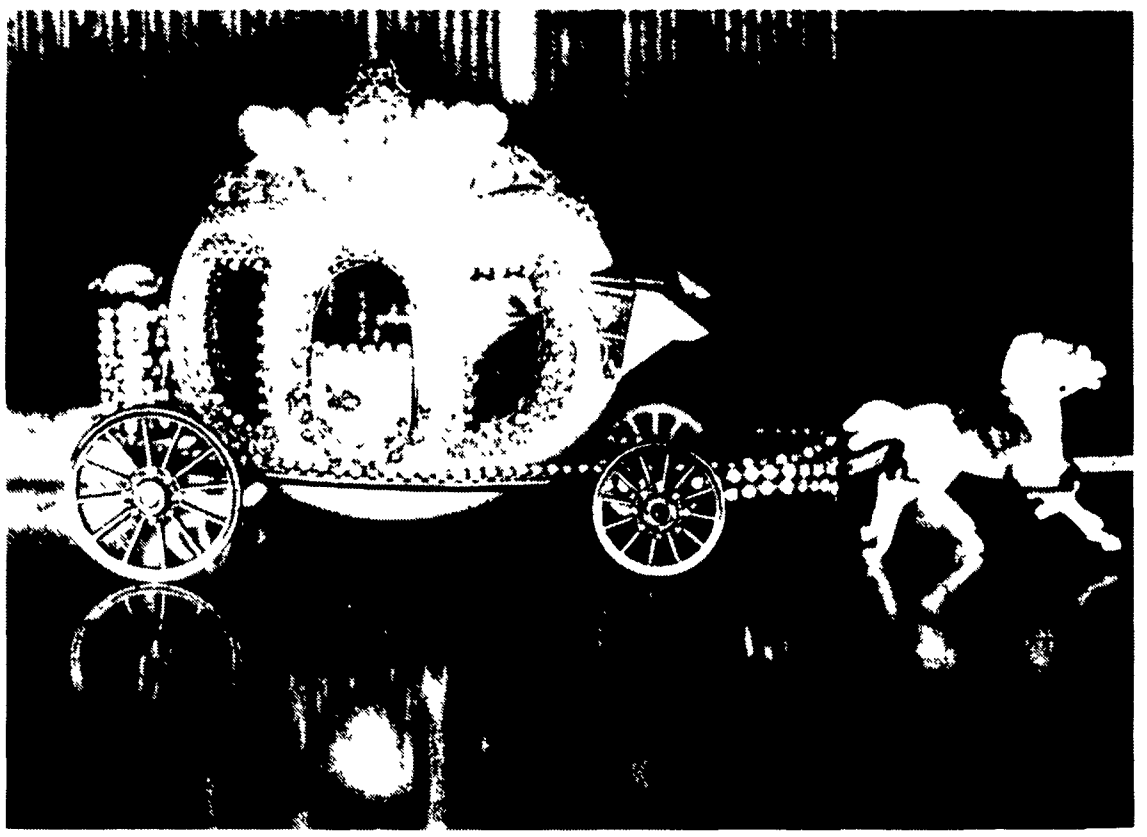
Marian made her ostrich egg into a Cinderella carriage complete with hinged doors, cellophane windows, wheels and padded seats.

"I saw an ostrich egg at the last egg show that had a complete living room scene at Christmas — a little train going around on a rack, and a tiny hole in the floor where a mouse came up. It was powered by electricity. They wanted $500 for it."

Marian Barr of Belleville has been decorating eggs for many years and displays them in her china hutch year round. These eggs are shells that have been chiseled, cut, decoupaged or decorated.



Here are some creative ways eggshells can be decorated, including a pot-bellied stove and a baby carriage. The large egg on the right is an Emu egg, which is slightly smaller than an ostrich egg.



An ostrich egg stage coach or Cinderella carriage is a beautiful addition to Marian Barr's cut and decorated egg collection.

Marian Barr holds her "egg photo album." The eggshell is cut in slices, hinged together, and decorated.

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

Microwaving some parts of your Easter dinner makes sense. It speeds up cooking and lets you enjoy the day too.

I like microwaving a sauce, like Cranberry Glaze (below), to brush on meat or poultry while it oven-roasts. The sauce adds flavor and an attractive finished look to ham, pork or turkey. I also like this sauce for serving on the side as a special touch for a festive meal.

Twice-baked or stuffed potatoes have always been one of my favorites to make for a "company" dinner. I always make them ahead and, unless I'm serving a very large group, I reheat them in my microwave. Today's recipe, Light Stuffed Potatoes, tastes rich and inviting, yet it uses low-fat dairy products so calories and fat are low.

I usually microwave a vegetable for a special dinner rather than cook it in lots of water on the stove-top. The vegetable tastes fresher and looks better too. This year my choice is a combination of bright orange carrots, snowy-white cauliflower and vibrant green fresh parsley. Extra flavor comes from a store-bought Hollandaise sauce mix (which is much lower in calories than the homemade version and not at all tricky to make). A touch of dill weed adds to the springtime flavor.

Even if you don't try these recipes together for a festive Easter dinner, I know you'll like them individually when you want some good eating and easy cooking.

There are no real tricks to making any of these recipes. Just be sure to stir the sauce after each 1½ minutes of cooking so it doesn't lump. Cook the potatoes as directed — not until they are completely tender, or they'll end up shriveled and tough. Test them for doneness before time is up. The center should feel slightly firm when tested with a fork. Wrap them in foil or cover them tightly for about 10 minutes so they can finish cooking. The finished stuffed potatoes can be made several days ahead and refrigerated (or up to a month ahead and frozen).

The vegetable combination is cooked in two steps to ensure that the firmer carrots are done and the more tender cauliflower not overcooked. Carrots often don't get fork-tender when microwaved (or if cooked too long, they get tough and rubbery), but cooking them on Medium (50 percent power, 325-350 watts) with more water than normal allows them to tenderize. Since cauliflower is a less-fibrous vegetable, it's added after the carrots have partially cooked.

Cranberry Glaze For Pork, Ham Or Turkey

2 teaspoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup orange juice
1 16 oz. can whole cranberry sauce

Stir together cornstarch and cinnamon in a microwavable 1-quart measure. Gradually stir in orange juice until smooth; stir in cranberry sauce. Microwave (High) 3 to 5 minutes, stirring twice or until starting to boil and thickened. Use some of sauce to baste ham, pork roast or turkey towards end of roasting time. Serve remaining sauce separately. Makes about 2 cups sauce.

Each 2-tablespoon serving: 48 calories, 0 protein, 0 fat, 12g carbohydrate, 5mg sodium, 0 cholesterol.

Light Stuffed Potatoes

4 medium baking potatoes
¼ to ½ cup skim milk
¼ cup low-fat sour cream
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ to ½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground pepper
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
Paprika

Pierce each potato in two spots. Arrange in microwave in a circle with the center open. Microwave (High) 16 to 20 minutes, turning potatoes over halfway through cooking, or until almost done. Wrap potatoes in foil or put in a tightly covered casserole. Let stand until easy to handle; then cut each lengthwise in halves. Carefully scoop out pulp, leaving ¼-inch thick shells. Set shells aside. In a large bowl, mash potato pulp. Stir in half of skim milk, low-fat sour cream, nutmeg, salt and pepper; mix until smooth. If necessary, add enough additional milk to make a fluffy mashed potato mixture. Scoop potato mixture into shells; arrange in a circle with the center open on a microwavable large tray. Sprinkle with cheese and paprika; cover lightly with plastic wrap. Microwave (High) 3 to 5 minutes or until hot. Makes 4 to 8 servings.

HINT: Amounts of skim milk and low-fat sour cream will vary depending on size of potatoes. Use enough to achieve the consistency of mashed potatoes.

TO MAKE AHEAD: Microwave potatoes. Continue as above, but do not cook. Cover tightly with plastic wrap and refrigerate. (Or, overwrap with heavy-duty foil or plastic freezer paper and freeze up to 1 month.) Before serving, loosen plastic wrap and microwave (High) 6 to 8 minutes or until hot. (If frozen, remove foil and microwave on High, allowing about 12 to 15 minutes.)

Each serving — ¼ of recipe: 77 calories, 3g protein, 1g fat, 13g carbohydrate, 96mg sodium, 7mg cholesterol.

Springtime Vegetable Medley

2 1.25 oz. envelopes Hollandaise sauce mix
Dash hot pepper sauce
3 medium carrots, thinly sliced (about 2½ cups)
¼ cup water
½ medium head cauliflower, broken into 1 to 1½-inch flowerettes (about 3 cups)
1 teaspoon dill weed
1 to 1½ cups cut-up fresh parsley leaves
Salt and pepper (optional)

Prepare Hollandaise sauce mix according to microwave package directions in a 4 to 6-cup measure, using double ingredients as listed in directions and almost double cooking time, stirring after each 1½ minutes. Set aside.

Place carrots and water in a microwavable 2-quart casserole. Cover with lid or plastic wrap. Microwave on Medium (50 percent power, 325-350 watts) 5 to 6 minutes or until tender-crisp. Stir in cauliflower and dill weed. Recover and microwave (High) 4 to 6 minutes or until almost tender. Let stand, covered, 5 minutes. Drain. Stir in prepared sauce and parsley. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Each serving — ⅙ of recipe: 70 calories, 4g protein, 4g fat, 8g carbohydrate, 158mg sodium, 0 cholesterol.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

For the umpteenth year in a row — maybe since Day One for such statistical record keeping — farming heads the list of the most hazardous professions.

Consider the components of danger inherent to a farm: unpredictable and sometimes temperamental animals, high-powered, high-speed machinery, too many chores and too little time, fatigue, etc. Not to forget the slippery surfaces, as we were reminded in a government agency brochure a few years back which warned that "manure is slippery."

But, golly gee, it isn't only manure that's slippery — which it is. I've done more than one impromptu acrobatic performance trying to regain my balance after connecting with fresh "organically recycled feed" while moving cattle. Add an inch or two of mud and you have the makings of a real aerobic workout.

Ceramic tile feed troughs are slippery. The smooth, impervious surface makes a great eating surface for cattle because of its hardness, resistance to the acids in feedstuffs and ease of cleaning. No problem when the tile surface is dry.

But there are always those couple cows that "slurp" from the fountains at their stalls, lapping up water with those big tongues like a cat at the milkdish. The water they splash in a three-foot radius turns the smooth tile surface ice-skating slick. More than once my feet have hit such a wet spot while tying cows in for milking; only a timely lunge at the stall pipes saves me from cracking something breakable against the hard floor.

Long stretches of mist and intermittent drizzle spawn slippery conditions. Prolonged soggy weather turns concrete surfaces into skid traps, especially if they happen to have a buildup of sticky feed dust, or spilled splashes of calf milk, or a layer of grease. Gliding over slick surfaces is great on skis, but less fun when carrying a 50-pound bag of feed across the calf barn cement floor.

Part of the danger is bald boots. There are auto inspection rules aimed at preventing driving dangers from tractionless, bald tires. My two favorite pairs of barn boots have zero tread on the soles, and would never qualify for an inspection sticker.

The "up" side is that they do not collect barnyard residue between big traction cleats to litter the house floor. I'll try to focus on that next time I skid down the grade to the milkhouse on a sleet buildup.

Bale strings which hide in loose hay and straw are another unseen farm hazard. How many times have you been throwing down bales for feed when suddenly an orphaned string wraps around your foot and trips you? Fortunately, bales are relatively soft and the landing not too painful. Embarrassing, though, especially if someone happens to be passing by the barn door and notices your lack of grace as you flip into a pile of bedding.

Gaps between bales stacked in layers can stop you in your tracks, too. Literally. Working in a hasy mow, your foot suddenly plunges through a hidden, three-inch space between the layers of bales you've been tromping over. Now you know how Alice felt when she fell through the rabbit hole into Wonderland.

Extricating yourself from such a predicament is no fairytale, though. Especially if the hay is scratchy and you're wearing shorts and no socks.

I pondered farm hazards a few mornings ago, sitting there on the barn floor, trying to remove my foot from where it dangled through to the heifer pen below.

A board covering an open space had slipped slightly to the side as the bottom layer bales were being removed, allowing just enough space for my size seven foot to slip through to mid-calf. No harm done — except to my ego.

Just another near-statistic that safely slipped through the cracks.

Working From Home — Is It For You?

Viking Ship® Calcium Nitrate

15.5-0-0-19Ca

GROWTH

Nitrate nitrogen is the fast-acting, controllable N-source for fruit trees. Unlike ammonium nitrogen (NH_4), nitrate-N affords optimum nutrition timing for rapid growth and early production. Calcium Nitrate supplies 14.5% nitrate nitrogen.

QUALITY

Calcium availability, at adequate levels, is essential to early and sustained production of high-quality tree fruit. Young trees, as well as mature, producing orchards never outgrow their need for calcium.

Specifically, root vigor, reduced fruit disorders, optimum color and size and storage quality of fruit are directly related to adequate calcium levels. With Calcium Nitrate as your orchard fertilizer, trees and soil receive 19% water-soluble calcium.

YIELD

Heavy production of high-quality tree fruit has been achieved—for more than 40 years—by growers using Viking Ship Calcium Nitrate fertilizer.

Use Calcium Nitrate in your fertilizer program. You will be pleased by the predictable response—the growth, quality and yield improvement possible with Calcium Nitrate's combination of essential orchard nutrients. For the life of your trees...Calcium Nitrate...the fertilizer to start with, the fertilizer to stay with!

As with any fertilizer application, consult your extension office or other advisory service for recommended practice that meets local crop and soil conditions.

Before beginning to use Formula #7, Bee III, I conducted tests for my cholesterol level. I tested at 265. After one month's usage of Formula #7, Bee III, I returned to have my cholesterol checked again. It dropped to 195! That's 70 points in 30 days! I made no dietary changes and only added Formula #7, Bee III to my diet. A beneficial side effect was that I lost 10 pounds!

Dear Golden Pride:
For many years I suffered from arthritis, borderline high blood pressure, and leg pain due to poor circulation. After being introduced to Formula #1 by a friend and then attending your meeting in Raleigh, I began on 4 teaspoons/day reducing to 1 teaspoon after that.
After just one week of Formula #1, I no longer had any problems with arthritis. After just 2 weeks, my blood pressure dropped 10 points, both top and bottom readings My legs don't hurt anymore either. I'M SOLD!

ANSWER — Gayle Sieger of Womelsdorf requested a recipe for dandelion jelly. Thanks to Mrs. David Fisher, Lewistown, who sent one that she said never fails to bring enthusiastic reponses and makes great gifts. Mabel Penrod of Sterling, Ohio, sent the same recipe that she got from a Pennsylvania cook 25 to 30 years ago. Interestingly, two Anna Martin's sent in recipe. The only difference in the recipes is that 2 teaspoons of lemon extract and 2 teaspoons orange extract may be added in place of the 1 teaspoon lemon extract or lemon juice.

Boil rapidly for 3 minutes. Strain through cloth to make 3 cups juice. Add:

1 teaspoon lemon extract OR 2 tablespoons lemon juice

1 box Sure Jell

Bring to a full boil and add

4½ cups sugar.

TAKING TIME

by Rebecca Wolf

Extension Home Economist

Everyone talks about money. No one talks about money. It's an odd phenomenon. We talk about the economy, taxes, high prices for clothes, and the tip for the waiter. We rarely talk about the balance on OUR credit cards, OUR end-of-year bonuses, OUR outstanding medical bills, OUR raises, OUR parents' assets.

That's private. That's note of your business. In the case of our parents, that's none of our business. And yet it really is!

This last week I found myself watching the reactions of people when the topic of personal finances was broached. The situations were different. In one case a youngster was broadcasting the news that his parents had $350! Apparently to him this was a newly discovered fact. He was amazed. What were we to say in response? "Oh really? How do you know?"

The other was much more difficult. A co-worker was contemplating major social and financial decisions for an elderly family member. They were faced with the reality that they knew little about the older couple's finances, insurance provisions, and legal position.

These situations were both awkward. And neither of them were "wrong" or really embrassing. But I couldn't help thinking that casual everyday conversions about money-bills, insurance plans, bank accounts- throughout the life of these families would have removed some of the mystery and left all the parties involved more relaxed and informed.

With the youngster, the family has time to introduce the subject of money gradually and allow him to adjust to it. But with parents, grandparents, and other elderly members, the conversations need to be held today.

If you will ultimately be responsible for handling a parent's or an aging aunt's finances, take time to talk now. Ask about the number of bank accounts or bank certificates. Find out your parents' wishes about distribution of their assets. Ask them about all their insurance policies— medical, property, life. Have they given someone power of attorney in case of an emergency or their incapacitation? Ask them to show you their filing system and important papers.

These are heavy subjects. They are difficult to begin. I remember my parents sitting all of us children down at the kitchen table and discussing the selling/willing of our family farm. Talk about discomfort. All I wanted to say was "Let's not talk about this NOW."

But talking about it was one of the best things they could have done for us! Now as the subject is rementioned, the conversation flows more easily.

If you are the older parent, consider planning a special time with your children to talk. Seem impossible? Consider writing the things down. In fact, writing the information down ahead of time is a good way to prepare yourself. You can use this as the tool and simply review the piece of paper together.

You'll be thinking about family income and assets this month as the tax filing deadline approaches. Take some time this week to jot down the important information and share it with those you care about. You will be doing them a huge favor.

In all cases, whether it is a family member of a trusted friend, each elderly couple should share their financial dealings with at least one person other than a spouse. That person will then be in a position to handle things in case of an emergency.

Marvelously Colored Easter Eggs

The egg's perfect shape always has inspired artists. It has been the palette for one of the most intriguing of folk arts in many cultures.

There is no end to the creative possibilities for individual expression on an egg-shell. Eggs can be painted or colored with crayons or felt-tipped pens, turned into funny faces, topped with fantastic hats, trimmed with feathers or sequins or simply dyed in an endless variety of hues. Decorating eggs is fun for kids and grown-ups.

Faux, a fancy way to say "fake," marble eggs are easy to make and can lend a luscious touch to your Easter table. You can used hard-cooked eggs or blow the contents from the eggshells for a longer-lasting work of art.

When the eggs are ready, line a cookie sheet with waxed paper or foil. Place several inexpensive sponges on the cookie sheet and pour one to two tablespoons food coloring over the center portion of each sponge to create a stamp pad. Use a separate sponge for each color. Let the coloring stand on the sponge until it's absorbed, about 5 minutes. (Keep a good stock of paper towels nearby).

Holding an egg at its top and bottom between your thumb and forefinger, gently roll the egg over the sponge to create marble shadings, swirls, and stripplings. Shift your holding position to turn the egg and roll again and again until the entire shell surface is covered. As each egg is finished, set it back into the egg carton to dry.

If you'd prefer "new wave" designs of dots, dashes, and triangles, dab pencil-top erasers or the edges of block-style erasers onto the dye-soaked sponges and press onto the eggs. Vary the pressure and eraser angle for different effects.

Refrigerate your decorated hard-cooked eggs as soon as you're done and, if you'd like to eat them later, refrigerate them again after displaying or hiding them. Discard any hard-cooked eggs that have been at room temperature for more than 2 hours and use the rest within one week.

Use pencil-top erasers or the edges of block-style erasers and dye-soaked sponges to give your egg "new wave" designs.

The History Of Egg Coloring

Eggs have played a part in springtime celebrations as far back as 5,000 B.C. The ancient Chinese, Egyptians, Greeks, and Romans exchanged colored eggs as tokens of good will to proclaim the season of renewed life.

Some believe that the custom found its way into Europe with the Crusaders. Medieval English families placed huge platters of decorated eggs, specially blessed by the local priest, in the center of their Easter tables to be offered to each visitor during Easter week. The Dutch settlers in Pennsylvania and New York are credited with bringing their native custom of coloring eggs at Easter to this country.

Before the advent of food coloring, eggs were dyed by boiling them with flowers, leaves, roots, seed, logwood chips or cochineal (a dye made from a dried cactus-eating insect). This natural coloring process is yet popular among creative modern craftspersons. For instance, yellow onion skins as a dyestuff produce orange-shaded eggs, while red cabbage leaves color them various shades of blue. Another historic decorating method still being practiced today is that of the beautiful Ukrania "pysankas." Wax is applied to form traditional geometric designs while a series of dye baths produce the color. A thin coat of varnish preserves and hardens the egg shell so it can be expected to last for years.

The egg's common association with hope and resurrection, as well as its fragility, probably accounts for its popularity in Eastertime fun and games around the world.

"Pace egging" is an old English tradition similar to Halloween trick or treating. (The term "pace" derives from the word "Pasch," which means "Easter" in most European countries). Costumed children (years ago wearing animal skins) went from house to house singing or performing skits to collect colored, hard-cooked "pace eggs." The eggs were then used to play games such as egg shackling, an age-old ritual popular in many countries. Shacklers hold eggs in their right hands, trying to protect the eggs as much as possible with their fingers. They tap them against their opponents' eggs — trying to smash the others while keeping their own intact. Children also rolled their pace eggs at each other on a field, with the egg remaining unbroken declared the "victor egg." Dolly Madison initiated the White House Easter Egg Roll in Washington in the early 1800s and the custom continues to this day.

In Switzerland, children are supposed to receive their eggs from the Easter cuckoo, but children in most countries believe that the Easter rabbit lays and hides the eggs they hunt for on Easter morning.

Celebrate this happy season with your family's favorite traditions. Many are made possible by the incredible edible egg!

Review of Terms For Easter Hame

With all the terminology used, it's no wonder shoppers become confused when trying to select just the right ham. Do you know what all these terms mean whole, halves, portions, ends, slices, butt, shank fully-cooked, semi-boneless, boneless, shankless, skinned, defatted, canned, perishable, water added, country- style?

A "ham" is the upper portion of a hog's hind leg. A fresh ham is an uncured ham, more similar to a fresh pork roast then a cured ham. Hams are generally cured by injection of a brine solution. Most hams are also smoked after curing, although they may not be labeled as such. About 90 percent of all hams are "fully cooked." That is, the ham has been cooked by the packer and need only to be reheated to an internal temperature of 140°F. The National Livestock and Meat Board recommends 15 to 18 minutes per pound at 325°F. For best results use a meat thermometer. Don't overcook or you'll end up with a lot of unnecessary shrinkage.

Hams may be purchased whole or in halves, portions, ends, or slices. If ham is labeled as a half, it must not have any of the center slices removed. Once the choice center slices have been removed the remainder must be labeled as butt, shank portions, or ends.

Ham may be sold semi-boneless, boneless or shankless. A semi-boneless ham has the leg bone remaining but that aitch (pronounced H) bone and usually the shank bone removed. A shankless ham has the shank bone, away from the butt or rump, removed. A semi-boneless ham is usually partially skinned and defatted.

A boneless ham may be rolled, shaped or canned. Most have been fully cooked. Read the label to be sure. Some canned hams have the temm "perishable" on the label. These hams have been cooked to 150°F during processing and must be stored in a refrigerator. A non-perishable ham is a small canned ham (usually 3 pounds or less) which has been cooked to an intemal temperature of at least 250°F during processing. It can be stored on a shelf without refrigeration.

A term that sometimes confuses shoppers is "water added." A curing solution of salts, sugar and water is injected into the ham curing processing to produce the meat's familiar color and flavor. Most of this added moisture is subsequently lost during curing and cooking. If some moisture, no more than 10 percent of the ham's original or "green" weight is retained, then the ham must be labeled "water added." If more than 10 percent moisture is retained, the ham must be reworked into another product or labeled with the exact amount of water, such as "ham with 20 percent water added."

Dry cured hams are rubbed with salt and other dry curing agents, then slowly smoked and dried. These hams are usually very salty and require soaking and simmering before baking. They are commonly referred to as country hams or they may bear the name of a specific locality like Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky or Smithfield. If they are labeled "country-style" or "Virginia-style" they are produced outside that locality and its jurisdiction but use similar methods. Dry cured hams are generally whole, untrimmed, and include the skin, fat and bone.

Treat Alfalfa Like Cash Cro

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

CALVERT, Md. — To grow alfalfa properly, treat it like a cash crop

Also, give it the attention to corn or soybeans or other crops that you're growing, said John Baylor, forage specialist (retired), Penn State University.

Baylor spoke to about 60 farmers last week at a special Alfalfa Management Workshop at the Calvert Grange Hall. The speakers focused on the importance of variety selection, soil management, planting, harvesting, storage, grazing, and marketing at the conference, which focused on "Alfalfa, the Queen of the Forages."

Baylor emphasized that, while alfalfa is costly to ensure yields over a 5 ton/per acre average (most farmers face an average of about 3 to 4 tons per acre), in the long run, the higher yields create a downward cost trend in terms of fertility management.

Good stands

"As yields go up, costs go down," he said. "But high yields start with good stands." In particular, liming is a "must" for high quality alfalfa.

"Correcting the pH through the addition of lime has economic advantages if you do it right," he said.

Through the use of technology, such as near-infrared reflective spectroscopy (NIRS), forage quality can be better analyzed. But for the burgeoning market for horse hay in the area, buyers are looking for various factors, according to Baylor, including high leaf-to-stem ratio. Also, buyers are looking for hay that is fresh-smelling and free of must or mold and weeds or trash. It also must have a healthy green color.

Variety selection

Dr. Sam Stratton, forage breeder with the FFR Cooperative in West Lafayette, Ind., spoke about the factors going into variety selection, including yield for the forage and seed; pest resistance; forage quality; stand persistence; and adaptability.

Persistence and adaptability are important to obtain an alfalfa stand from 3 to 5 years.

According to the researcher, the best way to fight diseases in the plants is to obtain disease-resistant varieties. The quality of the forage, however, is hard to identify, but through seed breeding, the improvement "comes in small increments — we can advance about ½ percent a couple of selections at a time."

Stratton said "management by far is the most important factor. We can raise the potential in small increments at a time."

Dr. John Baylor, retired forage specialist from Penn State, spoke to farmers about the need for forage for horses in the Maryland and southeastern Pennsylvania area at the Alfalfa Management Workshop last week.

Product ready

Stratton said it takes 7 to 8 years to get the product ready to go the market from when it is first tested. Factors such as weather and location, in addition to seed genetics, provide data that must be measured over that period of time.

Alfalfa growers face about 32 new varieties of alafalfa seed each year, and growers should examine the performance conditions best suited to their land and growing experience.

Growers should also look for alfalfa varieties that have faster dry down and good weed and erosion control to promote a good stand.

Stratton said took look at the

Lester R. Vough, forage crops specialist with the University of Maryland, far right, moderated an alfalfa grower "best management panel" at the management workshop last week. From left, Dr. William Griffith, agronomist with the Phosphate and Potash Institute, Great Falls, Va.; Dick Kauffman, research agronomist, W.L. Research, Silver Spring, Pa.; Joe B. Mayer, field sales agronomist, Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Carlisle, Pa.; Bud Moore, Cecil Co. Farmer of the Year and an alfalfa grower; and Vough.

PROWL® Knocks Triazine-Resistant Weeds On Their Ear. For $5 An Acre Less.

PROWL® herbicide handles the toughest triazine-resistant weeds in corn, like pigweed, lambsquarters and kochia. Other tough grasses and broadleaf weeds like foxtails, velvetleaf* and woolly cupgrass* are also controlled all season long with PROWL. Plus, PROWL® herbicide costs about $5 an acre less than Dual[1] or Lasso[2].

Con-till. No-till. Conventional. PROWL works in any tillage system and can be applied anytime after planting up to the four-leaf stage. Do NOT incorporate PROWL in corn.

Tank mix PROWL and get even broader-spectrum control for problem weeds like wild proso millet, shattercane and seedling Johnsongrass.

This season, for proven cost-effective control of grasses and broadleaf weeds in corn, put PROWL to work in your fields. It really packs a punch.

performance data to "get the best handle on performance."

Seed-soil contact

Th mber one reason seedbeds fail is because of poor seed-to-soil co t, according to Joe B. Mayer, field sales agronomist with Pioneer Hi-Bred International. It is important to get a good, firm seed bed and position the seed no more than ¼ inches down in the soil. No-tilling provides the best seed-to-soil contact. He recommended seeding at about 18 pounds per acre (12-14 lbs per acre no-till).

Mayer also recomended using Eptam or Balan to control annual grasses and broadleaves applied pre-emergence. Furidan applied into the soil also helps provide a good alfalfa stand.

It is important to lime the soil to about 6.5-6.8 pH. Lime is a "soil regulator" that controls all chemical processes in the soil and helps the bacteria to work more efficiently to provide nitrogen to the crops.

Also, using a starter fertilizer (20)-60-20 in Maryland is essential, and Mayer said farmers should follow the soil test recommendations.

Reseed or rotate

"Trying to thicken old stands is an exercise in futility," said Mayer. After the stand begins to fall off, farmers should to reseed or rotate out of alfalfa.

"Seeding is a war of attrition," he said. One pound of alfalfa seed comprises about 210,000 seeds, which provides, in the end, about five plants per square foot per acre. There are 70-95 seeds per foot/row, and 22-36 plants then sprout. Of those plants, only 11-18 survive.

About 9-12 plants per square foot provide maximum alfalfa yield, he said.

Some problems growers face include winter heaving, pest preditors including the potato leaf hopper (which causes tipburn and can create a ½ ton loss in yield per acre the next year) and alfalfa weevils. Weeds can reduce forage quality by 50 percent. And finding good weather to harvest the crop is a problem, particularly in the spring.

"The best time to cut is at early bud and early bloom," he said. Each subsequent cutting should take place every 32-35 days until the last two cuttings, late in the season, at 45 days.

Super element

Potassium is the super element for alfalfa, and alfalfa crops remove it at a dramatic rate, said Dr. William Griffith, agronomist with the Phosphate and Potash Institute, Great Falls, Va.

"Alfalfa has a big appentite for potash," he said. To achieve an 8 ton per acre yield, potash is removed at 480 pounds per acre. Phosphorous is removed at the rate of 120 pounds per acre, and magnesium and sulphur at 40 pounds.

The grower should balance out the need for potash with other fertilizer needs, including phosphorous. Keeping pH levels at 6.5 and including boron and sulphur in the required nutrient mix each year are important.

Through intense soil management, growers could yield up to about 8 tons per acre of alfalfa, providing the fertility levels are kept at optimum, according to a U. of Maryland Forage Farm study. And growers achieve a "tremendous benefit with a corn/alfalfa rotation," said Griffith.

According to the study, with high fertility levels of alfalfa, corn crops came out in rotation at 194 bushels/acre (132 bushels at low alfalfa fertility level). The alfalfa fixes a great deal of nitrogen to the soil.

Cutting dates

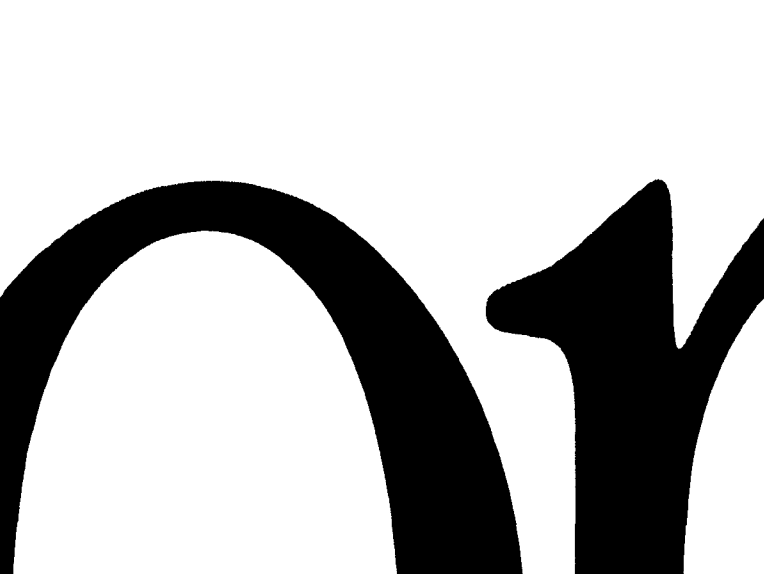
Dick Kauffman, research agronomist with W.L. Research in Silver Spring, Pa., provided dates on cutting alfalfa in Lancaster, Pa. The system cutting schedule was 1st cut, May 18; second, June 20; third, July 24; fourth, August 28; and fifth, Oct. 18.

Kauffman said farmers should try to "cut earlier than we normally do" to obtain muluple cuttings in the year. Early to mid May is the best time, if the weather holds up well.

Growers should also consider alfalfa pasture grazing as an alternative to cutting and baling. Grazing eliminates the need to find several sunny days to cut and is good bloat control for animals

Also at the workshop, an award was presented to Joe Newcomer for outstanding service to the Maryland-Delaware Forage Council.

Dr. Sam Stratton, forage breeder with the FFR Cooperative in West Lafayette, Ind., spoke about alfalfa variety selection at the management workshop.



Dr. Richard Barczewski, extension agent with the U. of Delaware, left, presents a merit award to Joe Newcomer for outstanding service to the Maryland-Delaware Forage Council.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

My grandchildren certainly lead a different life than I did at their age. Even their home surroundings are completely different. They live in large, modern homes with every convenience. They dress well and eat well and have the best medical care.

When I awoke in the morning, I found two sisters in bed with me. One slept beside me in the red rope bed and the other slept at the bottom of the bed. We had a "chaff bag" for a mattress. It was filled each year with fresh, clean straw. Our only heat was a stove pipe that ran through our bedroom from the kitchen Stove. One of the first jobs was emptying the chamber pot under the bed. It has many decades before my parents had electricity and plumbing put in our big house.

Our breakfast was mush and pork pudding or mush and molasses. I and my six sisters liked something sweet like honey on our mush. We walked almost a mile to a two-room school.

Many of our clothes were homemade and I remember hating the high, boy's shoes that I had to wear to school. But, they were a pair that didn't wear out easily. We washed our clothes in a machine that was powered by a wooden handle that had to be pushed back and worth. My mother made our soap in a big iron kettle over a wood fire. One morning, when she cut a new kettle of soap into pieces, she discovered a rat had fallen into the hot liquid.

Every week we baked a half dozen pies and stored them on a high hanging shelf in the cellar. If they molded, we ate them anyway and it didn't seem to harm anyone. Now, we are much more careful in our food preparation.

The rag rugs that covered our floors were taken outside every week and swept. The dishes were washed in a dishpan set in a dry sink and hot water was dipped from a resevoir beside our cookstove. I picked up wood chips, bark, and corn cobs to start the fire. Ah, memories.

Safe Prom, Graduation Celebrations Promoted

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)— Pennsylvania dairy farmers, through the Pennsyhrania Dairy Promotion Program, are making spring prom and graduation parties more exciting and safe. CHEERS "party packs" are available for schools across the state to include in their special springtime festivities.

Along with the free "party packs," the PDPP will be kicking off the spring CHEERS campaign with special promotions across Pennsylvania. Dairy promoters will be visiting schools, stores, malls, and other locations to let everyone know more about the CHEERS program.

Although this is the second year for CHEERS at proms and graduations, CHEERS, non-alcoholic dairy beverages, have been in use for many years. The program simply involves the replacement of milk and milk products for alcoholic beverages in popular mixed drinks, punches, and cocktails. With today's consciousness about drinking and driving, CHEERS beverages are not only a safe but also a healthy altemative for party planners.

CHEERS beverages create a festive atmosphere for any party. The recipes are simple and take little time to prepare. The CHEERS party pack and recipe brochures include information on the preparation of the special beverages.

Prom and graduation party planners can send into the PDPP to receive the party packs which nclude: beverage napkins, banners, tent cards, recipe brochures, and stickers. In addition, schools that conduct a party and send in a photo of their CHEERS display, are eligible to receive a $35 reimbursement for their party expenses.

But there is more than free materials involved. By using CHEERS recipes for milk-based drinks, party planners can offer great tasting, nutritious alternatives to soft drinks. And, parents, school personnel and others will be setting a good example for high school students and the community. After all, the best part of any celebration is doing it safely.

Party packs can be obtained by sending the following information into the PDPP: contact person, school name, school address, numberr of students, and the type and date of the party or celebration. The requests should be sent to Brian Ross, PDPP, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA, 17110.

Consumers can try the following popular beverages at their springtime parties. Further information about the CHEERS program and additional CHEERS recipes can be obtained by calling Ross at (717) 787-6903.

Rhelda and her son Lynn reminisce on the success she received for her successful breeding program.

Widows: Can They Survive On The Family Farm

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

This is the fourth article in a series about the obstacles widows face to remain on the family farm.

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — "I faced skepticism from banks long before my husband died 10 years ago," Rhelda Royer said.

In 1954, Rhelda had applied for a loan to begin dairy farming. Although she and her husband lived on a chicken farm, Rhelda, who had been raised on a dairy farm, couldn't adjust to a life without cows.

When Newcastle disease hit their chickens, Rhelda decided to buy some cows. Her husband did not share her love for cows and when Rhelda attempted to borrow money for cows and a dairy parlor, bankers balked.

Rhelda countered, "I'm going to milk cows even if I need to tie them under a tree. Based on her 4-H record, the banker gave Rhelda enough money to buy two cows. Rhelda had a good year raising tomatoes and earned almost enough money to build a two-stall milking parlor.

She had a difficult time convincing the Hershey Milk Company to bother with the milk from two lone cows. What Rhelda terms as a bit of luck happened when the milk director, who was acquainted with her parents' dairy farm, came into the room while she was talking.

"Take her on," he commanded. "She'll give you a good product."

Even so, Rhelda had to transport the milk cans to a pick-up point about five miles away.

"My first milk check was $9.31. I thought I had a million," Rhelda recalled.

Rhelda named the dairy farm Blossomelle Holsteins after her first cow named Blossom. Soon she purchased additional cows. Right from the beginning, Rhelda was determined to have a well-known herd. She attended every milking seminar held locally, studied bulls and read everything on breeding that she could find.

Today, those in the dairy industry recognize Rhelda as the person who won the Progressive Breeder Award for 13 years, milked a cow three times a day before the practice became popular, bred 14 cows classified Excellent, and is the first woman director for the Atlantic Dairy Cooperative.

"People say that I was born before my time," Rhelda said with a twinkle in her eye.

Perhaps she was. But on the other hand, this feisty lady has racked up a reputation for breeding cows that few ever attain.

When she first decided to use artificial insemination, an uncommon practice with county farmers, Rhelda's father warned her that the cows would be born without ears and other birth defects.

Another item that her father deemed unnecessary was her decision to participate in DHIA testing.

Rhelda remained adamant.

Today, those in the dairy industry recognize Rhelda as the person who won the Progressive Breeder Award for 13 years, milked a cow three times a day before the practice became popular, bred 14 cows classified Excellent, and is the first woman director for the Atlantic Dairy Cooperative.

"Anything worth doing is worth doing well," she said.

With farming she insisted on doing everything top notch.

Her self-education and persistence paid off. But Rhelda insists, "I crawled, not rushed, into becoming successful."

The lessons Rhelda learned in those beginning years are ones she feels that are particularly important for women who wish to farm alone.

Her philosophy is that the farm always comes first — before new carpeting and other niceties for the house. Her son recalls that when they needed a new kitchen he had to tell his mother, "Now, Mother, if this was the barn, you'd put in the best."

On the farm, the money goes into things that will make more money. "Not buildings," she said, "but into cows — the best."

Her obsession is discussing pedigrees and figuring out how they work. "Anyone can buy a cow," she said. "The challenge is in putting pedigrees together to see how animals develop."

Tight finances do not mean widows cannot become successful. Rhelda said, "Because I didn't have money to start up, I've always been more cautious. I know my limits."

She believes it is important for women to know where they stand financially. She stresses that everyone should have a credit line to use to pay bills in time to take the discounts. She said, "Discounts add up substantially in a year."

She said, "As a farmer, you must be a salesperson and present yourself to the lender. You must have a plan to pay back the loan. You must realize that cash flow is more important than equity."

She said, "Little details add up such as the quality premium if somatic cell count is under a certain amount. It's those little details that we must watch."

Rhelda and her son Lynn are in partnership. Things have changed a lot since her beginning days. In some respects, Rhelda believes it would be easier for women to farm alone in the '90s than it was when she first started. She believes that bankers are more open to loaning money to women, but she said that no one would be able to get a milk company to bother with milk from two lone cows. She did not use a bulk milk tank until 1960.

"Because my husband did not like the farm, he worked at off-farm jobs and did not do much with the dairy. When he died, it did not make much difference in the workload, but the emotional turmoil was awful," Rhelda said. "Everytime we heard a siren or walked around the corner of the barn, the agony of the night he was caught in a forage wagon returned."

Rhelda said, "The cows are what cemented my children and I together when my husband was gone. It felt good to have something to do."

People are amazed at how tame my cows are," Rhelda said. Out of

Farmland Dairies Bring Ultra Slim-Fast To The Dairy Case

WALLINGTON, NJ — Slim-Fast Foods Company, makers of ULTRA Slim-Fast, one of the country's most popular weight loss programs, and Farmland Dairies have just introduced ULTRA Slim-Fast ready-to-drink refrigerator cartons in the Northeast. The innovative cartons are fresh as milk and available in the dairycase of Metro New York and New Jersey supermarkets in both 12- and 24- ounce sizes.

These convenient ready-to-drink cartons fit perfectly into the ULTRA Slim-Fast weight loss program. The 12-ounce rich, creamy Chocolate Royale and French Vanilla containers equal a complete 220 calorie ULTRA Slim-Fast meal while the 24-ounce carton holds enough for two handy meals. Both cartons allow room to shake the delicious mixture to create a frosty, frothy milkshake.

Those following the weight loss program have an ULTRA Slim-Fast milkshake daily in place of breakfast and lunch and a third shake as an optional snack. A sensible, low-fat dinner supplements the milkshakes and completes the 1,200 to 1,300-calorie-a-day plan.

Each carton of ULTRA Slim-Fast is enriched with fiber and contains 17 essential vitamins, minerals and protein. Three shakes a day provides 100% of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance of these 17 essential nutrients. ULTRA Slim-Fast is a nutritious, delicious way to lose weight.

"Farmland Dairies is proud to bring ULTRA Slim-Fast to the dairycase in the Northeast," says Marc Goldman, president of Farmland. "The convenient refrigerator cartons make it easy for those on the ULTRA Slim-Fast program to lose weight and stay slim at home, at the office, and on the go." Last year, over 23 million people used Slim-Fast products.

ULTRA Slim-Fast has enjoyed tremendous success since it is effective, great-tasting and affordable to the general public. Refrigerated ULTRA Slim-Fast is available in the dairycase at Waldbaums, Pathmark, Sloans, Kings, Krauszer's, D'Agostinos, ShopRite, Grand Union and Foodtown supermarkets.

Learn To Cook For A Healthy Heart

The Culinary Heart Kitchen cooking course, designed by the American Heart Association for people who want to learn how to cook exciting low-fat, low-cholesterol foods, will be offered April 4 at the Farm and Home Center by the Penn State Extension.

The 6 week course includes a shopping tour at a local market. Students will learn how to prepare meals low in fat, cholesterol, salt and calories, yet retain the natural flavor and zest of each dish. Sessions are included on cooking meats and poultry, breakfast foods, soups, fish, vegetables and baked goods.

"Culinary Hearts Kitchen is the ultimate course for anyone interested in a healthier lifestyle," said Fran Hadley, registered dietitian, who will be teaching the course, "it's not just for heart patients, but for anyone who wants to learn how to take his or her favorite recipes and alter them so that they are really good for you."

Fee for the course is $35.00 per person, or $45.00 for two family members, and includes instruction, copies of all recipes and taste-testing each sample recipe. For reservations or more information call the American Heart Association at 393-0725.

Can Widows Survive On The Family Farm?

all her cows, Rhelda loved Zsa Zsa the best. Zsa Zsa got so attached to Rhelda that when Rhelda was in the hospital for an operation, the cow refused to eat. Fearful that the cow would get mastitis, Rhelda returned to the barn the day she was discharged from the hospital

"As soon as Zsa Zsa saw me, she was fine," Rhelda reported.

The Royers have a free stall set-up. People think we have an odd milking schedule," Lynn said. "We milk at 10 to 11 o'clock every morning and evening. That allows them to have evenings free to attend meetings and for Lynn to tuck his two children into bed before he begins the evening milking.

"Unlike many operations, we don't use computers," Rhelda said. "But I like to know daily what is going on so I keep everything organized. It works much better when everything is organized."

Hard work and farming go hand in hand. Rhelda believes that one of the most important resources that help make life successful is the relationship with your children. Rhelda is grateful that her son is in partnership with her. Her daughter, a teacher, maintains her devotion for the cows and c[illegible] as the relief milker

When Rhelda first entered the dairy business in the 1950s, she was pregnant. After her son Lynn was born, she wrapped him up and took him to the barn while she milked.

Lynn said, "I don't know if that had anything to do with it, but I always considered the barn a peaceful haven. When I was in school, I couldn't wait to get home from school fast enough so that I could work with the cows."

When Lynn and his sister were growing up, their mother never asked them to do anything that she would not want to do herself.

"I did not let them help before school," Rhelda said, "because I thought school work was important, and I did not want them to smell like a cow when at school."

There was never a doubt in Lynn or Rhelda's mind that someday the two would form a partnership.

"We have an unusual relationship," Lynn said. "My mother and I are very close and work well together."

Lynn revealed that his main requirement for a wife was that she could get along with his mother.

"My mother is so good in the barn that I knew it would not work to have another woman there, so I wanted my wife to have another career," he said.

He married a respiratory therapist.

Lynn said that one of the most important things his mother taught him was to treat a cow as good as his mother.

Her self-education and persistence paid off. But Rhelda insists, "I crawled, not rushed, into becoming successful."

"The nicer you are to cows, the nicer they are to you," Rhelda said.

Lynn said, "When I was younger, I remember asking my mother why she never got mad at a cow." His mother responded, "Oh, but I do. Don't you see me go out and walk around the tree to cool off?"

Rhelda never stays in the barn if she feels angry because she believes cows are sensitive and pick up negative emotions right away.

Rhelda's greatest strength is putting [illegible]s to work and seeing how animals de[illegible]p. She is in charge of breeding [illegible]istration, and livestock. The milking herd averages 18,906,700 pounds butter with 3.7 butterfat. Although Rhelda no longer does everything on the farm, she maintains a general knowledge of the whole operation. She has owned five cows that produced more than 200,000 pounds of milk, and 73 with more than 100,000 pounds recorded.

"The genetics are there. It's unfortunate that people get rid of cows when they grow out of their prime," she said.

Many of Rhelda's cattle have been sent to other countries. The Royers now have 71 Holsteins and farm 200-acres. They live in a 1988 Century Award farm in Manheim Township.

When Rhelda first began her dairy, it was essential to show cows to become well-known.

"I worked hours to teach my cows to walk like a lady," Rhelda said. "When they entered the showring and walked on tanbark, my ladies knew it was all business."

On the farm, the money goes into things that will make more money. "Not buildings," she said, "but into cows — the best."

Rhelda is best known for her cows Zsa Zsa, reserve Junior All American; Blossomelle, Show Bird, Moon Doggie, and Lovey Dove, Jr. All American.

Although Rhelda considered it essential to show cows to get established, she no longer has time. In addition, the fear of her cows contacting Johne's disease and TB cautions her from entering the showring.

She spends her time at cattle and antique auctions now. With pride she pointed to a dough tray, platform rocker, dove-tailed corner cupboard that she obtained and said, "People say that I can't talk about anything but cows, but I can. I like to talk about antiques." Rhelda keeps a spotless house.

Rhelda has a guest book filled with signatures and addresses of people from all over the world. "I like to have foreigners visit because they are so interested in the cow operation. They want to discuss pedigrees and figure out how they work. People in this country seem more concerned about whether or not you have everything painted and up-to-date."

Rhelda an[illegible]er herd made national news in 1975, when news commentator Paul Harvey visited her farm.

Some of her awards and activities include the following: the 1988 Century Farm Award, former 4-H leader, 17 years as a state delegate to the National Holstein Convention, a member of the Dairy Shrine Club, and chairman for seven years of the Dairy Princess Pageant in the county.

Rhelda doesn't want to be the bearer of bad news, but she said, "I'm a realist, not a pessimist. I predict that milk prices will drop and that farming will be very difficult for awhile."

Through it all, Rhelda won't give up. She said, "I'm a toughie I've always worked hard."

"Anything worth doing is worth doing well," said Rhelda Royer. Her persistence and self-education paid off. But Rhelda reminds others, "I crawled, not rushed, into becoming successful."

Rural-Urban Luncheon Features Meteorologist

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

LEWISTOWN (Mifflin Co.)— Members of the Mifflin County farming community were hosted by the Lewistown Rotary Club at the annual Rural-Urban Day luncheon on March 12.

Dr. Charles Hosler, chairman for the modernization of the National Weather Service for the National Academy of Science, spoke on the complexity of the atmosphere in forecasting and the new technology that will be emerging in the next few years. Hosler explained the relative accuracy in predicting the weather two to three days in advance but noted major shortcomings in the ability to forecast on a long-range scale or to pinpoint a forecast to a smaller geographic area.

The complexity of the atmospheric system — the things that go into determining whether it is cold or warm, raining or snowing — are so complex. It involves the variability of the sun, the sun's output changes, the earth's tilt, the cart's surface, the vegetation is changing, the mountains erode down, the oceans fill up, the ocean currents change — there are all kinds of things changing. The fact is, what goes into determining what next year will be like is so complex, we can't express it in terms of physical relationships,," Hosler said.

Hosler, currently the executive vice president and acting provost for the Pennsylvania State University and the dean of the Graduate School, refers to the "scares" that occur practically every decade. From global warming to ice ages, from acid rain to Iraqi oil fields burning, doomsdayers predict the worst.

Hosler admits to an increase in carbon dioxide since the Industrial Revolution. In the past 100 years, carbon dioxide has doubled and will double again in the next 50 years, causing the earth to become warmer by trapping additional energy. The 2% increase in methane each year, which also leads to global warming, is due to termites in the aftermath of cleared forests; the increase in rice production (swamp gas); and the increase in the number of ruminants, such as cows, sheep, and goats. "The number of cows in the world has gone up faster than the number of people," Hosler said.

While these factors play a role in global warming, Hosler said, "There are 72 other things happening at the same time which control the amount of energy coming in and going out of the atmosphere.

"One thing you get if you study any kind of science for any length of time is a little humility — and you begin to understand that we have only rough approximation," he said. "We have experimental evidence that certain things work certain ways and we concoct theories to explain that.

"Even our best theories are much less than perfect and there are so many things we don't understand. So I think we all need to have a little humility and look at the long-term record and understand we don't know what's happening in the way of climate change," he said.

Hosler said, "I can assure you that when I was here 40 years ago, no one could forecast what the weather was going to be like 2 weeks from now and there isn't anybody today who can tell you what the weather is going to be like 2 weeks from today."

But what about the other end of the spectrum? What can be done to pinpoint forecasts in a smaller geographic area? Plenty, according to Hosler.

Where the farmer gets frustrated is that even if we forecast there will be showers or thunderstorms, we can't tell today where those storms will be. It will rain 2 inches on the next farm over and not rain at all on your farm."

Hosler went on to explain that the National Weather Service is currently running on 1950s technology. His goal is to update. "I now chair a committee of the National Research Council to oversee what we call the modernization of the National Weather Service."

For localized forecasting, the excitement lies in doppler radar. Two prototypes are now detecting atmospheric changes in Denver, Colorado and Norman, Oklahoma. "With these new Doppler radars, you can actually see the air in motion — it detects motion. For the first time we can really see the atmosphere on the scale where these thunderstorms, tornadoes, and showers form."

Once the hurdle of government funding is cleared, the first Doppler radar station will be installed on Rattlesnake Mountain northwest of State College.

"The National Weather Service will be moving from Harrisburg to work with people at the University. That radar will be able to look over this area and actually see where the individual thunderstorms are forming. Trhrough television, you will be able to see which thunderstorms are going to hit your farm. There will not be a major tornado occurring in this country without at least a 30-minute warning once these radars are installed. You are about to observe, over the next 6 years or so, a revolution in short-term forecasting."

Advice From The Pennsylvania Farmers Association

1. Know everything about the farm operation, especially the books.
2. Be involved in paying the bills and in keeping financial records.
3. Know the people with whom your husband does business (insurance agent, banker, landlords, implement dealers, dairy coops, and farm associations).
4. Keep the will up to date. With your spouse, discuss the possibility of death and what should be done.
5. Does ownership of property coincide with the will structure? For example, would it be better to place part of the estate in a trust fund?
6. When a spouse is gone, don't be afraid to make changes or to ask questions.
7. Go to seminars sponsored by dairy co-ops, extension service, and banks.

PFA has a trust management service available to members. PFA will help a widow through the initial six months and longer if necessary with legal advice. Call Richard E. Denison of PFA Legal Service at 717-761-2740.

The farm is your biggest financial asset. You should plan. Call the extension office for help in estate planning.

Ciba-Geigy Sponsors Leadership Academy For Agri-Women

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Patricia Sueck of Airville, was one of 15 participants selected from across the nation to participate in the recent American Agri-Women (AAW) Leadership Academy, sponsored by Ciba-Geigy.

The three-day Academy is an intensive session covering topics such as developing leadership skills, effective lobbying, long-range planning, getting your point across through the media and motivating a volunteer workforce.

"The Academy opened new horizons for the organization and its leaders," says AAW President Sandy Greiner. "It allowed participants to see that we can have a positive impact and gave us the confidence to take action. The things we learned at the Academy will be particularly important this year as Congress considers environmental legislation."

Academy participants were selected after they submitted an application telling why they wanted to attend the sessions and how they would apply their knowledge to further the organization's goals.

"Only 2 percent of the population is actively involved in volunteer activities," says Academy workshop leader Charles D. Rumbarger, president of Association Management Group Inc. "I salute these women for choosing to use their limited leisure time working for their communities and for American Agri-Women."

Ciba-Geigy sponsored the Academy because, "We believe leadership sessions such as this one sharpen and strengthen the skills these women apply to their association work and their farm businesses. We're pleased to help them reach their goals and have a positive impact on all of American agriculture," says Ciba-Geigy Public Relations Specialist Karen Ludlow.

Cook's Question

QUESTION — Michele Mohler of Lovettsville is searching for a recipe for a moist Red Velvet cake. Thanks to Janet Fikes, Burlington Flats, NY, for sending one that was given to her by her mother-in-law and is always a hit whenever it is served.

Red Velvet Cake

Cream:
½ cup shortening
1½ cups sugar
2 eggs

Make a paste:
2 ounces red food coloring
1 teaspoon cocoa

Add to the shortening and sugar:
1 cup buttermilk and the paste

Beat continuously and add
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon white vinegar

Sift together:
2½ cups cake flour
1 teaspoon salt

Fold flour and salt into the batter.

Bake at 350 degrees. Use 2 pans and cut layer in half.

Frosting:

Cook 2½ tablespoons flour and ¾ cup milk. Cook over low heat until thick. Cool.

Cream ½ cup shortening
½ cup sugar

Add cool paste mixture and beat at high speed. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla and beat. Frost cooled cake.

ANSWER — Donald Love of Camp Hill requested a recipe for Pumpkin Sponge Pie. Thanks to Mildred Early of Annville for sending one.

Pumpkin Sponge Pie

Makes 2 8-inch pies

1 cup sugar
4 eggs, separated
2 tablespoons butter
2 heaping tablespoons of flour
1 cup pumpkin
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmet
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups hot milk

Place sugar and egg yolks in a bowl. Add butter to sugar mixture and beat well. Add flour, pumpkin, spices, salt and vanilla.

Beat the egg whites until stiff. Add the beaten egg whites and hot milk alternately to the pumpkin mixture.

Sprinkle 1 tablespoon minute tapioca into each unbaked pie shell before pouring in the filling. Bake at 425 degrees for 40 to 45 minutes.

Bologna Recipe

18 pounds beef
7 pounds pork
1½ pounds brown sugar
1 quart molasses
1 pound salt
1 ounce pepper
¾ ounce salt peter

Grind meat; add seasoning and grind again. Mix and fill muslin bags 4 or 5 inches wide which have been sewed twice. Fill very tightly so no hollow spots appear. Hang up and smoke.

Sweet Bologna Recipe

60 pounds ground lean beef
20 pounds ground lean pork or 80 pounds ground lean beef
3½ pounds salt
3 ounces pepper
1 ounce salpeter
10 pounds brown sugar

Mix all ingredients real well, then stuff into bags, making sure there are no air pockets, or bologna will spoil. Tie bags at top and hang up 3 days in a cold place. Then smoke with liquid condensed smoke. Smoke again in 2 weeks. Let hang about 2 months before eating. This is best to make in winter time.

NOTE: I use unbleached muslin for bags. Make bags about 3 to 3½ inches broad by 18 to 20 inches long. Do not drop or throw bags around before cured.

You can use a sausage stuffer to put bologna in bags.

ANSWER — John Chmielewski, Upper Black Eddy, requested a recipe for baked beans that tasted like those his grandmother used to make when he was a child 50 years ago. Thanks to Mrs. Richard Mendenhall, Concordville; Greta Dise, Glen Rock; and many others who responded. Deidre from Hope, N.J. wrote that dried beans should not be soaked in hard water as it can make them hard and tough, and that beans need extremely low heat for a long time. A Johnstown reader wrote that she finds as she gets older and gets hungry for things that her mother had made, the food just does not taste as good as when she was younger.

Baked Beans

3 cups white beans
¾ pound fresh salt pork
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon ground ginger
2 tablespoons molasses
1 tablespoon brown sugar
paprika
salt and pepper to taste

Soak beans overnight. Rinse, drain in morning. Cover with cold water, boil for 15 minutes. Drain. Put beans in buttered baking dish; add other ingredients and sliced pork or bacon. Place pork in beans with rind exposed. Cover with boiling water, bake six hours. Remove cover last 30 minutes to brown. Serve with chili sauce and brown bread.

Baked Beans

1 pound navy beans
½ pound bacon, chopped
1 medium onion
1½ tablespoons salt
1 cup brown sugar
½ cup white sugar
½ cup catsup
1 pint tomato juice

Soak beans overnight, then boil until tender. Drain off most of water and add remaining ingredients. Bake two to three hours at 350 degrees. Do not cover.

Baked Beans

1 quart pea beans or yellow-eyed beans
1 pound salt pork
1 onion
3 tablespoons molasses
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon ground pepper

Soak beans in cold water overnight. Panboil them for 30 minutes or until skins crack when blown. Put onion in pot and part of beans, pork, more beans, molasses, salt, mustard and pepper. Cover with boiling water and bake 10 hours in very slow oven. At the end of two hours, and each hour thereafter, add boiling water to replace that which has boiled away. An hour before supper remove cover, pull salt pork to top to brown. Add no more water.

Baked Beans

Wash 1½ cups dried beans. Soak overnight in four times as much water. Cover with water. Bring to a boil. Simmer 30 minutes or more until tender. Preheat oven to 250 degrees. Make sure heat level is accurate. Bake until morning. Drain beans and reserve cooking water. Add ¼ cup chopped onion, 2 tablespoons or more dark molasses

3 tablespoons brown sugar
2 or 3 tablespoons catsup
1 tablespoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup reserved bean water

Place beans in greased baking dish. Cover with sliced salt pork. Cover with lid and bake 6 to 9 hours. If beans become dry, add a few tablespoons of broth or bean water. Uncover the last hour of cooking.

If you cook these in an oven and miss that wood stove flavor, stir in a half teaspoon of hickory flavored liquid smoke during the last hour. Always bake covered until last hour.

"I hope these taste like the old beans John remembers so well," contributor writes.

Food Safety Course

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.)— Penn State Cooperative Extension of Lackawanna and Luzerne Counties is offering a food safety and sanitation course for those who serve food to the public. Those who would benefit from the program are individuals holding temporary DER licenses such as fair and street vendors, churches, volunteer fire companies, youth camps and farmer's markets.

The course will be held at two different times and locations- Tuesday and Wednesday, April 23 and 24 from 6:30 - 9:15 P.M. at the Penn State Worthington Campus; or Saturday, April 23 from 9:30 A.M. - 3:30 P.M. at the Penn State Wilkes-Barre Campus. The fees for the course are $5.00 for the evening sessions and $11 (which includes lunch) for the Saturday session.

The program is being sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension, the Department of Environmental Resources, and the Pennsylvania Department of Health. Instructors of the course are Penn State Cooperative Extension agents and DER inspectors.

Agricultural Legislation Signals Austerity, Flexibility

M.C. Hallberg
Penn State
Prof. of Ag. Economist

The Food, Agriculture, Conservation and Trade Act of 1990 (more popularly known as the 1990 Farm Bill) passed by Congress in October and signed by President Bush in December sets out the general policy guidelines for agriculture for the next five years. It is largely old stew reheated in the sense that it continues old approaches to price and income policy for agriculture. At the same time, however, it contains a good deal that is new and attempts to establish some new priorities.

The farm bill only authorizes various programs. The annual appropriations bill funds or fails to fund these programs. Thus, a full understanding of legislation for agriculture requires an understanding of both bills. Furthermore, 1990 was an unusual year in that congress had to contend with the federal budget deficit.

The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 (Congress' budget deficit reduction bill) was also passed. This legislation contains special provisions spelling out how farm program cuts of $13.6 billion are to be effected — agriculture's share of federal budget deficit reduction.

Legislation via the budget bill

Four major provisions relating to agriculture were included in the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 in hopes of saving $13.6 billion: (1) a triple-base acreage reduction plan, (2) a change in the method of determining deficiency payments on wheat, feed grains and rice in 1994-95, (3) a contraction in the 1991 acreage reduction program for wheat (to 15 percent) and feed grains (to 7.5 percent), and (4) a system of farmer assessment fees consisting of 1 perecent of the loan value or support price on sugar, quota and non-quota peanuts, honey, and tobacco; 1 percent of the incentive payment on wool and mohair; 5 cents per hundredweight on milk in 1991 and 11.25 cents per hundredweight on milk in 1992-95; and 2 percent of the loan rate on oilseeds.

Triple-base promises planting flexibility

Under the triple-base plan, a farmer's crop base acreage is divided into three portions. The first portion is an amount representing that farmer's share of the announced "acreage reduction" requirement. A farmer must take this amount of land out of production and place it in conserving uses to be eligible for deficiency payments and nonrecourse loans.

The second portion is the "permitted acreage" on which the program crop is to be planted and on which deficiency payments will be made.

The third portion is termed "triple-base acreage." On this latter portion, a farmer may plant any program crop (wheat, feed grains, cotton, or rice), any oilseed crop, any non-program crop except fruits and vegetables, or any other crop which USDA determines does not have a significant domestic market. Crops planted on "triple-base acreage" are not eligible for deficiency payments but are eligible for nonrecourse loans and marketing loans where applicable. [Oilseed crops include soybeans, canola (rape seed), safflower seed, flaxseed, mustard seed, sunflower seed, and sesame seed. The new farm bill thus creates a new category of program commodities, the six additional oilseeds.]

For the 1991-95 crop years, 15 percent of a farmer's base acreage must be "flexed," i.e., a 15 percent riple-base program will be in effect. Producers will have the option to "flex" an additional 10 percent of their crop base. For the 1991 winter wheat crop, producers will have the option of participating in the triple-base program or have their deficiency payments calculated on a 12-month basis. The latter option was necessitated because the 1991 winter wheat crop was already planted at the time of bill passage.

The "triple-base" plan and the additional 10 percent "flex" option serve two purposes.

First, both will contribute significantly to reduced program outlays. Deficiency payments will not be paid on mandatory and optional "flexed" acres.

Secondly, these programs permit farmers greater flexibility in responding to market signals, rather than encouraging them to protect their crop base regardless of market prices that may call for increased production of an alternative crop (program or non-program).

Unfortunately, not all farmers will have the same options to plant alternative crops on their triple-base acres. Most wheat-state farmers will be particularly hampered in this regard.

On the other hand, this type of planting flexibility should go a long way toward preventing the kind of situation that arose in 1968-88 when soybeans were in realtively short supply and soybean prices were high. Many feed grain producers refused to plant soybeans, preferring, instead, to protect their feed grain base. Indeed, it is anticipated that soybeans will be the crop of choice for much of the feed grain triple-base of "flex" acres.

Method of determining eficiency payments is important

The deficiency payments rate is determined as the difference between the target price and the higher of (1) the basic nonrecourse loan rate, or (2) the average market price received by farmers for the program commodity.

The months used in determining the latter average are obviously important since prices of program crops are typically lower at the beginning than at the end of the crop year (the crop year for corn and sorghum grain, for instance, runs from October 1 to September 30).

Under the new legislation, deficiency payments for these crops in 1994-95 will be determined on the basis of a market price that more nearly approximates the higher 12-month average crop-year price. The result will be to lower the deficiency payment rate by an estimated 10 cents per bushel on wheat and 7 cents per bushel on corn.

From the target price subtract the higher of:
(1) Loan rate,
(2) Average market price

Target prices in 1990 and under the new farm bill

Wheat	$ 4.00 /bu
Corn	$ 2.75 bu
Cotton	$ 0.729/lb.
Rice	$10.71/cwt

The actual amount by which deficiency payments will be lower depends, of course, on the actual market prices and actual loan rates in any given year. It is conceivable that this change will in some years make no difference at all in the payment rate, but, in general, Congress expects the rate to be reduced. This provision is not to take effect until 1994 because it was determined that these additional budget savings would not be needed until that time.

Legislation via the farm bill

Target prices frozen and loan rates variable

Target prices for wheat, feed grains, upland cotton, and rice are to remain at current (1990) levels for the 1991-95 crops ($4 per bushel for wheat, $2.75 per bushel for corn, $2.61 per bushel for grain sorghum, $2.36 per bushel for barley, $1.45 per bushel for oats, 72.9 cents per pound for cotton, and $10.71 per hundredweight for rice).

Loan rates for wheat, feed grains, cotton, and rice will be set at 85 percent of a five-year moving average of market prices, and will exclude the high and low years with year-to-year adjustments dependent on the stocks-to-use ratio of these commodities.

A new marketing loan program is established for oilseeds; the loan rate is set at $5.02 per bushel for soybeans and 8.9 cents per pound for the remaining oilseeds. The existing support programs for honey, and for wool and mohair are extended.

A milk price support floor is established

The support price for milk contianing 3.67 percent milkfat can be no lower than $10.10 per hundredweight for the next five years. As indicated above, an assessment fee of 5 cents per hundredweight in 1991 and 11.25 cents per hundredweight in 1992-1995 will be deducted from producers' milk checks for deficit reduction purposes. This fee may be refunded if a producer can prove that his or her milk production has not increased from the previous year's level.

To ensure that milk production, and therefore government purchases of dairy products, do not increase beyond reason, additional assessments may be imposed.

The Secretary of Agriculture is directed to develop a proposal by August 1, 1991, aimed at keeping purchases at or below 6 billion pounds milk equivalent. If Congress disapproves this plan and if government purchases of dairy products are anticipated to exceed 7 billion pounds milk equivalent during 1992 or subsequent years, USDA is authorized to exact another service fee from dairy producers to cover all costs incurred in the CCC purchases of dairy products in excess of 7 billion pounds milk equivalent.

Payment limits changed

The new farm bill maintains the current $50,000 payment limits on direct payments and deficiency payments. It establishes a new $75,000 limit on marketing loan gains, on loan deficiency payments, and on Findley payments.

The maximum amount of payments that an individual farmer may receive in any one year under the new legislation will be reduced from the current $500,000 to $250,000. For the first time, wool, mohair, and honey producers are subject to payment limits — $200,000 per individual in 1991 and down to $125,000 per individual per year by 1994.

Environment and resource conservation receive priority

The new farm bill creates an Agricultural Resources Conservation (ARC) program for the purpose of protecting highly erodible lands, wetlands, other environmentally-sensitive lands, and to improve water quality on agricultural lands. Included under this umbrella program are the existing Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) with an expanded list of eligible lands that can be enrolled, a new voluntary Wetlands Reserve Program (WRP) designed to enroll up to 1 million acres of wetlands into a paid 30-year or longer conservation program, and a new Water Quality Incentive Program (WQIP) designed to help farmers develop and implement plans that will protect water quality by providing up to $3,500 per year in cost-sharing assistance.

In addition, the new farm bill requires, for the first time, certified applicators to maintain records on the use of restricted pesticides. It establishes an Office of Environmental Quality within USDA to evaluate the effects of agricultural programs on the environment and to coordinate and monitor efforts to improve environmental quality. The bill establishes a program and research agenda for assessing the effects of global climate change on agriucl-ture and forestry, and authorizes a pilot program to promote the preservation of farmland threatened with conversion to other uses. Finally, the bill significantly expands research and extension activities to promote environmentally sound agricultural production practices through increase authorizations for low-input research activities, integrated resource management research, and training and information programs.

A significant rural development focus

The new farm bill offers the most significant rural development assistance package since the Rural Development Act of 1972. It consolidates the USDA rural development activities into a new Rural Development Administration. it authorizes a pilot program to review rural development program applications, set priorities for new programs, and to rank applications for FmHA funding through the business and industry program, the water and sewer program, and the community facility program. It provides for isolated rural area school and small rural hospital linkages via telecommunications to educational and medical programs in the more affluent urban areas and big-city hospitals. It authorizes a pilot project for use of partnership-type revolving loans to fund development projects, and authorizes USDA assistance to forest-dependent communities seeking to promote economic diversification. Finally, it allows rural electric cooperatives and the Bank for Cooperatives to provide loan funds to communities for water-waste systems.

Other farm bill features

A variety of other provisions are included in the new farm bill as well. It maintains the current loan rate on sugar and extends the requirement that the sugar program operate at no cost to the government. It reauthorizes existing domestic commodity distribution programs such as Food Stamp, TEFAP and CSFP, and reauthorizes existing foreign food aid and export subsidy programs (the Food For Peace Program, the Export Enhancement Program, the Targeted Export Assistance Program under the new name Market Promotion Program, and the Export Credit Guarantee Programs). It maintains the existing Farm Credit System and provides for a gradual shift from direct to guaranteed loan funds.

The bill reauthorizes the existing crop insurance program, and authorizes a comprehensive disaster program for the 1990 crops. It includes, for the first time, a forestry title in the farm bill, expanding the USDA authority to provide cost sharing assistance to the states and to encourage tree planting and other forestry activities aimed at beautification.

Finally, the bill sets the first national standards for "organically grown" products to help eliminate consumer confusion, provide consumers food alternatives, and give farmers market incentives to reduce chemical usage.

The new farm bill authorizes gradual funding increases for competitive research grants from $70 million to $500 million annually as recommended by the National Academy of Sciences. It authorizes $40 million annually for low-input farming research, $20 million annually for integrated resource management research, and $20 million annually for sustainable agriculture extension education programs. It establishes an Applied Agricultural Research Commericilization Center to provide assistance for research and development and marketing of new products. It creates an Office of Agricultural Weather within USDA to improve and expand the use of weather and climate information by farmers.

Consequences for Pennsylvania farmers

It is difficult to project the consequences of new agricultural legislation with much certainty. Weather plays a crucial role in determining the short-run fate or fortune of farmers, as we have learned in recent years — weather at home as well as weather overseas. The future price of oil, the consequences of the Iraqi embargo, and the pending recession collectively may be more important to farmers than any of the recent legislation directed to agriculture.

The 1990 Farm Bill merely authorizes many of the programs discussed in this report. The funds necessary to carry out these activities are made available by the annual appropriations bill. This is an important factor for such components of the farm bill as research, rural development, crop insurance, and farm credit. It is also true that the 1990 Farm Bill offers little that is fundamentally new in the way of price and income policy for agriculture. Nevertheless, it reinforces at least two trends that have been forged recently or are now evolving: (1) more farmer reliance on the market and less on federal subsidies, and (2) more emphasis on protecting the environment.

Pennsylvania farmers are for the most part concerned about milk prices and the cost of feed needed for the dairy and poultry enterprises. Some Pennsylvania grain farmers, though, are also vitally interested in the feed grain and wheat programs.

It seems clear that for the forseeable future the price support for milk will be at or near the $10.10 floor level. Special budget deficit reduction service assessments will bring the "effective" milk price down below published levels. USDA removals of dairy products in 1989 were 9 billion pounds milk equivalent and through September of 1990 totaled 7.2 billion pounds milk equivalent. U.S. milk production in the first three quarters of 1990 was up over the same three quarters of a year earlier.

Unless these trends are reversed, considerable downward pressure will be exerted on milk prices to bring supplies more in line with demand. Any changes resulting from the federal milk marketing order hearings now underway, and the Secretary's proposed solution for maintaining price support purchases at or below 6 billion pounds milk equivalent, bear close scrutiny by the state's dairy farmers.

The new farm bill contains little in the way of provisions that would cause feed grain prices to increase, so Pennsylvnaia dairy, poultry, and other livestock producers have little reason to be concerned on this score. What finally results from the current round of GATT negotiations may also be more important than the new farm bill in terms of future feed grain prices.

Perhaps most important to rural Pennsylvania are the new features and new priorities of the 1990 Farm Bill. First, for Pennsylvania grain producers, the "triple-base" plan and the additional 10 percent "flex" option will significantly increase their planting flexibility. They will be permitted to become better farm managers in the sense that they can plant crops based on market anticipations rather than on policy anticipations. Further, the added flexibility will permit these farmers some options not previously available in terms of crop rotations more suitable to their individual farms.

Secondly, the rural development provisions of the new farm bill are encouraging in that they place new emphasis on a very important component of rural Pennsylvania. Many Pennsylvania farm families require off-farm jobs on either a full-time or part-time basis in order to sustain the farm operation and farm family. It is important, then, that the rural community remains econommically viable and attractive to business that create employment opportunities for these farm families. The new rural development focus of the farm bill does not guarantee this will happen, but it goes part way toward encouraging it to happen.

Packaging Includes Cornstarch

GREENSBORO, N.C. — To support U.S. corn growers with added uses for their product, Ciba-Geigy has begun limited use of cornstarch in its packaging for AAtrex® Nine-O® herbicide.

The polymer/cornstarch packaging is part of 25-pound bags of AAtrex Nine-O. The cornstarch acts as glue to hold the package's polymers together.

Packaging Specialist Wallie Meisner said the packaging has worked well in performance tests. "When we began testing the cornstarch package three years ago, there were concerns that the bag would not be strong enough. Time and time again, in tests ranging from vibration to dropping, the package performed as well as traditional petroleum-based packaging."

In the current market, cornstarch packaging is an important innovation. "Ciba-Geigy is delighted to use its customers' products in the products we sell them," said Hugh Brooks, senior product manager for herbicides. "It's just good sense to substitute natural corn products for synthetic chemicals where possible."

Plans currently are under way to extend the market for cornstarch next year.

Hydraulic Hoses

Megaflex® Hoses M1T and M2T.

Length Comparison—180° Bend at Minimum Bend Radius

	Hose Type	Min Bend Radius (in.)	Distance Between Hyd Ports (in.)	Hose Length To Maintain Min Bend Radius (in.)	Percent Length Savings With MEGAFLEX
½" ID
[1] Longest length	SAE 100R1AT or 100R2AT	7.0	14.0	23.3	—
[2] Median length (if port distance can't be changed)	MEGAFLEX	3.5	14.0	19.3	17
[3] Shortest length	MEGAFLEX	3.5	7.0	12.3	47

The M1T Pressure Comparison

Inside Diameter		SAE 100R1AT	M1T	SAE 100R2AT
¼"	Maximum working pressure	2,750	3,000	5,000
⅜"	Maximum working pressure	2,250	3,000	4,000
½"	Maximum working pressure	2,000	3,000	3,500

In many cases, M1T can be used in place of 100R2 hose depending upon the application. Often 100R2 is over-designed for a job, 100R1 is under-designed while M1T is the money-saving choice

Features of Megaflex:

- Can be bent twice as tightly as SAE rated hoses
- Smaller O.D., lower profile
- Less weight
- 3000 psi W.P. in all sizes of M1T
- Superior flex impulse performance

Benefits of Megaflex:

- Easier to handle
- Tight bend radii means you can do the job with less hose at less cost. 47% less hose needed for 180° bend
- Takes up less space
- Faster installation
- Easier routing
- Greater design efficiency
- M1T has a 1-wire braid construction that allows for greater pressure than SAE100R1
- M1T can be used in many 2-wire applications (at 1-wire prices)
- Longer service life

10% CASH DISCOUNT ON ALL ONE & TWO WIRE HOSE ASSEMBLIES THROUGH MARCH 30th.

March 30, 1991
at 1:00 P.M.

REAL ESTATE - 85 ACRE FARM

Real Estate consists of 85 Acres, more or less, in Union Township, Snyder County, PA, whereon is situate a Bank Barn, Corn Crib, Implement Shed, & Other Minor Outbuildings, however, there is no house on property due to a fire a few years ago. The Snyder County Tax Assessment Office lists the farm as approximately 60 Acres tillable, approximately 10 Acres pasture, approximately 18 Acres woodland and approximately 1 Acre around farm buildings. This Farm has many pluses one of them being that there is approximately 1,100 ft. of road frontage on the south side of State Road 54050 and approximately 1,800 ft. on the west side and approximately 1,400 on the east side of Township Road #438. Farm also offers a nice layout of tillable grounds w/mostly Weikert & Hartleton type soils w/a stream flowing through property. One special feature which this farm has to offer is you can see almost all the grounds of the farm from the buildings and you can see the buildings from almost all grounds of the farm and you would most likely have many choices of location on farm to build a home. Property is designated on Union Township, Snyder County, Tax Assessment Map #06, Parcel 28 and is recorded in Snyder County Deed Book 84, Page 148.

TERMS: 10% Down Day of Auction, Balance Within 30 Days. To Be Offered at 1:00 p.m. For Showing of Real Estate Call (717) 374-4441 or (717) 374-4872 or (717) 374-4215,

A series to update hog producers on the Pennsylvania Pseudorabies Eradication Program.

Third In A Series

PRV: THE LANCASTER COUNTY SITUATION

Robert Fahnestock
President
Lancaster County
Pork Producers' Association

Quarantined Herds 84
Quarantined Vaccinated Herds 56
Quarantined Nonvaccinated Herds 28
Nonquarantined Vaccinated Herds 17

I am presenting these figures primarily to give producers an overall picture of the situation in Lancaster County. When this appears in Lancaster Farming, the figure will probably have changed considerably. I would expect the member of nonquarantined vaccinated herds to be more than double the present figure.

The number of quarantined nonvaccinated herds is also somewhat misleading. These herds are primarily feedlots, many of them finishing pigs that were vaccinated before they arrived at the farm.

Overall, I believe this program is being supported very well by producers and most quarantined farms are vaccinating. I would like to encourage producers in Lancaster County to contact their veterinarian, Abe Fisher, PRV Committee chairman, or myself if they need any information on the vaccination program.

I think Lancaster County producers need to be aware that this is a voluntary producers' program intended not only to control PRV but to eliminate it. Individual producers have more freedom under this program to work with their veterinarian to develop their own program complementary to their own situation.

However, with more freedom we also have more responsibility. This program is part of a national program. Stage III of the national program is mandatory depopulation.

Although that is an indefinite number of years ahead, producers need to be aware of what the future may hold. It is to our benefit as producers that we all work together to try to eliminate this virus.

It is of the utmost importance that each of us, as producers, accepts our share of the responsibility for the success of this program. Previously, producers were not given the freedom of participation that we have in this program. The success of it is now up to us.

If we succeed in eliminating PRV from Pennsylvania, that success may also benefit us in other areas in the future.

CAMPYLOBACTER — ANOTHER FOOD SAFETY CONCERN

David C. Kradel
M.S., MPH, DVM
Dept. of Veterinary Science

Campylobacter, a possible cause of food-borne illness, seems to be the next bacteria to which much media publicity may be directed.

Several surveys have shown that between 34-60 percent of raw chicken and pork may be contaminated with this bacteria. Raw milk, contaminated water, and vegetables have also been associated with outbreaks of the related illness in people.

Campylobacter, as with other bacteria frequently associated with food poisoning, are frequent and normal inhabitants of the intestinal tracts and environments of all mammalian and avian species. In one survey, 27 percent of pet dogs were found to have Campylobacter in their feces.

People may also be carriers of this bacteria. Campylobacter is not associated with any established disease problem in chickens.

It has occasionally been associated with abortion in sheep and cattle. There is, and will continue to be, research trying to find ways of eliminating or significantly reducing Campylobacter in the intestinal tracts and environments of poultry.

It is unlikely that any method will prove effective, practical, and/or economically feasible. As with most food source bacteria that can cause potential health problems, proper food handling and food preparation must be the primary means of preventing possible food-borne illness.

The need for proper food handling is illustrated by the fact that one (1) bacteria in a food will support growth and if kept at 75 degrees F can multiply to more than 16,000,000 bacteria in eight hours.

Producers of animal products should do the following as part of their responsibility to food safety:

- Follow the best available management procedures, including appropriate cleaning and disinfecting between flocks. If other established procedures are proven to significantly reduce selected bacteria in the raw product, these procedures need to be followed.
- When selling products, provide written warnings about the potential for contamination of any raw food and give specific instructions on proper handling and/or preparation of the product.
- Provide other educational materials on the causes and prevention of food-borne disease to customers.
- Actively support educational, public relations, and promotional programs that will tell the public about the production, nutritional quality, wholesomeness, and general safety of poultry products. For example, a recent estimate of the amounts spent annually by commodity groups on consumer education or promotion was eggs, $1 million; dairy products, $100 million; and tobacco products, $1 billion.
- Encourage the development of innovative educational programs that will eventually allow consumers to better evaluate food safety concerns. These bacteria need to be respected and their presence should be understood but not feared. We might compare the situation to use of automobiles. The automobile can injure if handled improperly but we don't blame the automobile or hesitate to drive.

Information on safe handling and preparation of food may be requested from your local Cooperative Extension Service office or the USDA food safety hotline, (800) 535-4555.

Extension Offers Food Safety Course

WILKES-BARRE (Luzerne Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension of Lackawanna and Luzerne Counties is offering a food safety and sanitation course for those who serve food to the public.

The five-hour course is designed to educate food service people in causes of food-borne illness, cleaning and sanitizing, personal cleanliness and Department of Environmental Resources (DER) inspections. Those who would benefit from the program are individuals holding temporary DER licenses such as fair and street vendors, churches, volunteer fire companies, youth camps, and farmer's markets.

The course will be held at two different times and locations — Tuesday and Wednesday, April 23 and 24 from 6:30 p.m.-9:15 p.m. at the Penn State Worthington Campus and Saturday, April 27 from 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. at the Penn State Wilkes-Barre Campus. The fees for the course are $5 for the evening sessions and $11 (which includes lunch) for the Saturday session.

The program is being sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension, the Department of Environmental Resources, and the Pennsylvania Department of Health. Instructors of the course are Penn State Cooperative Extension agents and DER inspectors.

Participants will receive a record of attendance signed by the three sponsoring agencies. One-half a continuing education unit from Penn State University will also be available for those requesting it.

Eval Center Completes Bull Testing

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania's Meat Animal Evaluation Center announces the completion of the 112-day performance testing program on a tremendous set of bulls.

In spite of the worst weather conditions for performance in recent memory, individual records were set and the entire group of bulls performed extremely well. This performance under adverse conditions is indicative of the quality of bulls that will be offered for sale in Pennsylvania's 18th Performance Tested Bull sale, scheduled for March 29, during Pennsylvania 2nd annual Beef Expo.

The top gaining Simmental bull is the C & B Incumbent son from Laurel Valley Farm. This heavily musculed bull maintained an average daily gain of 5.51 pounds per day through the 112-day test, gaining him an A.D.G. ratio of 134. He also posted an adjusted 365-day weight of 1,468 pounds and a final index ratio of 121.

The second-highest indexing Simmental is the Pineview Presley son, consigned by Bruce Laidig. This lean, growthy bull gained 4.54 pounds per day on test and attained a final index of 110. The 22 Simmental bulls averaged 4.10 pounds on test/day.

The two top gaining Polled Herefords each finished the testing program with gains in excess of 5 pounds per day. The top indexing Hereford bull consigned by Paul Slayton is a G.K. turning Point X53 son. This massive, eye-appealing bull maintained an average daily gain of 5.10 pounds per day with a ratio of 128. He also had an adjusted 365-day weight of 1,349 pounds and a final index of 119.

Mike Egleston's R.B. Stamana 719N son set a new test station record for a Polled Hereford bull with his A.D.G. of 5.20 pounds per day on test, gaining him a ration of 130. This meaty bull registered a 1,338 pounds adjusted 365-day weight and a final index ration of 118. The 21 Polled Herefords had an average A.D.G. of 4.00 pounds per day.

The top indexing Angus bull is the Manhattan of Indian Creek son from Indian Creek Farm who gained 4.89 pounds per day on test with a ratio of 119. This bull also posted the top adjusted 365-day weight of any bull over all breeds of 1,524 pounds with a ratio of 121.

The second highest indexing black bull is the Penn State TKO son from Errer Hill farm. This bull has the highest A.D.G. among the Angus with a tally of 4.91 pounds per day and an A.D.G. ratio of 119. He also has an adjusted 365-day weight of 1,284 and a final index of 110. The 21 Angus bulls registered the top breed average A.D.G. with an impressive 4.12 pounds per day for the 112 days.

The two top performing Charolois bulls are both sons of H.B.R. Performer 181 P, owned by Glenn Turk. These two bulls gained 4.37 pounds per day and 4.29 pounds per day through the test. The six Charolois bulls attained an average A.D.G. of 3.94 pounds per day.

The top-gaining Chiangus bull, owned by Nittany Farm, gained 4.21 pounds per day and posted a 1,375 pounds adjusted 365-day weight.

The Saler bull owned by Lyn-Less Farm gained 3.80 pounds per day and registered an adjusted 365-day weight of 1,313 pounds.

For more information or to request a bull sale catalog, contact Glenn Eberly, director of the MAEC, 651 Fox Hollow Road, State College, PA 16803, (814) 238-2527 or (814) 865-5857.

FACT Puts Tough Measures On Ag

SOMERSET, N.J. — The 1990 Farm Bill, otherwise known as the Food, Agriculture, Conservation, and Trade Act of 1990 (FACT) imposes new and tougher conservation measures on the agricultural community. For the first time in history, the Farm Bill actually has the word "conservation" in its title.

"The intent," said Barbara T. Osgood, head of the SCS in New Jersey, "is to send a clear signal to the agricultural community that not only conservation of the soil but of all the natural resources is expected. The Farm Bill not only places increased environmental regulation on farmers but offers increased opportunity for farmers to maintain and protect that valuable resource they rely on to make a living — the land."

Some of the highlights of the 1990 Farm Bill are similar to the 1985 Farm Bill (FSA). However, almost every major component has a new twist to it:

• Conservation Compliance. Nationwide, the Soil Conservation Service (SCS) has helped farmers develop more than 1.3 million conservation plans to reduce erosion on some 135 million acres of highly erodible cropland. To stay eligible for USDA program benefits, these plans must be fully implemented by 1995. While the 1985 Farm Bill omitted certain programs from the law, the 1990 version includes virtually all USDA programs. This compliance with the conservation plan will be checked by SCSers from the field office all the way to the Washington office. There is no second chance for farms out of compliance.

• Swampbuster. Under the 1985 Farm Bill, producers lost benefits when they converted wetlands and planted a commodity crop on this wetland. The 1990 Farm Bill expands the wetlands protection so that the producers do not have to plant a crop on this converted wetland. The act of conversion will be enough to be considered a swampbuster. In addition, the producer must restore the wetland under a plan developed by SCS and agreed to by the Fish and Wildlife Service Before benefits are restored.

• Environmental Conservation Acreage Program. The Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), begun with the 1985 Farm Bill, has been expanded to include several other set-aside options for environmentally sensitive lands. A Wetland Reserve Program (WRP) will provide a financial incentive to farmers to restore former wetland areas. Producers will be paid for an easement on this property. Also under the CRP, farmers will be able to set land aside for the sake of water quality and wildlife. Practices such as tree planting, permanent wildlife habitat, windbreaks, grass waterways, and filterstrips, among others, can not only receive cost sharing but farmers can receive annual payments for putting the areas dedicated for these practices into a 15 to 30 year conservation easement.

Be sure you follow your conservation plan closely. Before signing up for any program that may change your crop or farming practices, or you modify or maintain any wet (even previously wet) area, check with your local SCS person.

USDA Seeks Comments On Farm Bill Provisions

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) recently asked for comments on several provisions which may be implemented for the 1991-1995 crops of wheat, feed grains, rice, upland cotton, and extra long staple cotton.

Keith Bjerke, executive vice president of the CCC, said comments are sought on:

• Whether targeted option payments should be made available for wheat, feed grains, upland cotton, and rice.

• Whether acreage designated as acreage conservation reserve for wheat, feed grains, upland cotton, and rice may be planted to oilseeds, industrial or experimental crops, oats or any other crop.

• Whether double-cropping on conserving use acreage under the 0/92 and 50/92 program provisions should be permitted.

• Whether malting barley should be exempted from acreage reduction requirements.

• Whether loans and purchases should be made available to program participants who cut corn for silage.

• Whether a paid land diversion program should be made available for the crops of wheat, feed grains, upland and ELS cotton, and rice.

CCC is proposing that none of the foregoing provisions be implemented for the 1991 crops. CCC is also proposing that double-cropping on conserving use acreage under the 0/92 and 50/92 provisions, malting barley exemptions, corn silage loans, and paid land diversions not be implemented for the 1992-1995 crops.

A paid land diversion program for upland cotton must be determined annually, and CCC is proposing only that it not be implemented for the 1991 crop. CCC will also consider comments on whether targeted option payments should be made available and planting crops on ACR should be permitted for 1992 and subsequent crops.

Comments are also requested on which counties should be designated as suitable for the production of ELS cotton for purposes of the ELS price support and production adjustment program. CCC intends to designate the same counties eligible for ELS program benefits as in 1990 and additional counties may be designated upon request.

Surgery Performance Takes Planning

Herbert C. Jordan
Associate Professor
Poultry Science
Penn State University

Each spring across America, many young farmers plan and perform caponizing surgery on their own cockerel chickens at 8-28 days of age.

This author receives a few calls each year when surgery failed to some degree.

Here are tips to keep the surgeon sharp, alert, accurate, useful throughout the surgery, whether it is caponizing, debeaking, dubbing, or some other surgery.

The surgeon must:

• Have adequate rest the night before.

• Be healthy without a cold or flu or any disease that may adversely affect human performance.

• Normal sight of eye is essential, so wear corrective lenses if needed and have them clean, fitted, with the proper prescription. If you need no glasses, keep eyes clear and clean. Do not caponize if you have a depth perception problem or are color blind.

• Use natural light or incandescent light — do not use pulsating fluorescent lights. Any light with a fluctuation is inadequate.

• Consume no alcohol or other drugs of any kind 48 hours or more before you perform surgery.

• Feel well — do not perform surgery if you feel lack of energy, dizzy, tired, or weak. Surgeons must be supple, quick, strong, endure more stress in an hour than most people encounter in a day. Plan and prepare yourself for it.

• Major surgery on several hundred birds a day is only for the competent, trained, experienced, capable, knowledgeable, wise, and above average human in self-discipline.

• Eat a balanced meal, with protein, 1-2 hours before surgery begins and eat again mid-morning if energy begins to fail. Keep body fluids normal.

• Caponize with compassion, accuracy, speed, and admit when you are wrong. Capable surgeons have no choice — they must be right all the time or know how to recover the patient if an accident or error happens.

• If a surgeon is not sure, do not perform surgery — ask for help. In Pennsylvania, a few caponizing schools or teams are available to help you to learn. Contact your nearest county agricultural agent.

Do not take surgery lightly. The animal depends on the surgeon for everything, so plan a preoperative, operative, and postoperative program for the bird — and the patient should do well.

1991 BARN PAINTING

Aim For The Best - In Coating Film Thickness

To do it right use the finest kind of bristle brush evening out the coating into a film thickness that does not peel in normal moisture stress (found on most barn siding from outside and inside by livestock or stored animal feed)

1. PREPARATION. Peeling old coatings (improperly brushed) needs to be removed The best again is simply water blasting or power washing! High volume of water - medium pressure is best! Done professionally or do it yourself, especially on the easy to reach areas This is resurfacing!!!
2. BEST NEW START ON RESURFACED WOOD SIDING After spraying on this kind of barn paint or stain, take time to pay attention to brush out in directions to create a film thickness that will p vent future peeling & resurfacing costs & effc This film will let excess moisture breathe through it Depending on the amount of weather wear it can be recoated lightly in 10 years or more Southern exposures usually wear faster

Farm Associations Meet With Congress

WASHINGTON D.C.— Nearly 200 Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) members visited Washington recently to discuss priority farm issues with Pennsylvania's congressmen and senators during PFA's annual National Legislative Tour.

Harold Kulp, Pottstown; Richard Breckbill and Harold Bryson, Oxford; Robert Lange, Malvern; Elmer Mast, Parkesburg, and Marshall Haws, Exton represented the Chester/Delaware Farmers' Association. They met with Congressmen Dick Schulze, Robert Walker, and Curt Weldon to discuss farm policy that had been developed by Chester/Delaware Farmers Association and the PFA.

Topping the list of farm policy priorities was the Private Property Rights Act of 1991. Closely following are wetland issues, production taxes, reauthorization of the federal-aid highway program, the elimination of capital gains tax, a balanced budget with line-item veto authority for the president, and a health insurance tax deduction for self-employed taxpayers. This would not be needed for non-taxpayers.

PFA President Keith Eckel urged congress members attending a breakfast session with the group to enact legislation to permit agriculture to operate in a free-market atmosphere. He related examples of bureaucrats, acting in the name of public good, of interfering with property ownership and labor relations.

"Private ownership of property is one of the cornerstones of the Bill of Rights," Eckel said. "Unfortunately that right is slipping away through the onslaught of the regulatory powers of federal and state governments. The fifth amendment of the U.S. Constitution provides in part that 'no person shall be...deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.' But regulatory agencies are destroying these principles that protect private property rights."

Eckel said, "The complexity of federal and state regulations has left farmers puzzled and covered with bureaucratic red tape in their efforts to deal with government agencies. Private property owners are being asked to bear the burden and costs of government decisions that are made in the supposed interest of the public at large. These decisions go far beyond the protection of public health and safety.

"Private property rights are the basis for all economic progress. Unless all people, not only farmers, can feel secure in their ability to retain the fruits of their labor, there is little or no incentive to save and expand their businesses and look to the future for themselves and their children," he said.

Eckel pointed out the unfairness of a production tax on producers of peanuts, wool, milk, mohair, sugar, tobacco, and mohair. "Farm businessmen are willing to accept high and low prices as a part of the free-market way of doing business. But to tax our production instead of income is ridiculous. These taxes are of little consequence when it comes to balancing the federal budget. But they represent a major burden for farmers experiencing declining prices for their products while their expenses are skyrocketing," he said.

Farmers want the Legal Services Program to return to the original intent of providing day-to-day legal needs of the poor and indigent clients.

Richard Breckbill, president of the Chester/Delaware Farmers' Association, said that a representative group would be visiting legislators in Harrisburg on April 8. Statewide priority issues include agricultural waste utilization, agricultural labor, animal welfare, food safety, littering/bottle bill, nutrient utilization, tax reform, tort reform, wetlands and wildlife damage.

Automatic Offers Preservative Applicator

PENDER, Neb.— Preservative additives for forages and grains can be applied efficiently and economically with the PA-25 precision applicator, available from Automatic Equipment Mfg. Co.

The PA-25 precision applicator allows the operator to precisely control flow rates, helping to prevent spoilage that can result from undertreatment and avoid high material costs due to overtreatment.

The PA-25 allows the operator to precisely control flow rates, helping to prevent spoilage that can result from undertreatment and avoid high material costs due to overtreatment.

Accurate and uniform application of liquids or suspendible inoculants is accomplished through a system of pressure adjustment, a pressure gauge, and the selection of one of the five nozzle tips provided with the PA-25.

Automatic's PA-25 features a compact design, and is engineered for reliable, easy operation. The applicator can be mounted directly on balers, forage harvesters, choppers, roller mills, near blowers and other harvesting or processing equipment. A sturdy metal base and tank tray provide solid support, with mounting in holes and hardware for attachment to other equipment.

The PA-25 has a 25-gallon polyethylene tank with a five-inch fillwell, screw-on lid, and molded-in gallonage marker. A choice of 120 VAC or 12 VDC motor-driven, duplex diaphragm pump is offered.

DC units come equipped with wiring harness, switch, and fuse for convenient operation from the tractor seat. Diaphragm check valves eliminate dripping of materials after the applicator has been shut off.

Livestock Notes

Depressed Sheep Industry

Many of us have been depressed with the poor wool prices at 44¢ per pound and low lamb prices of $46 per hundred weight for 100-pound lambs.

Poor prices abound everywhere. This is quite a change from high prices of just two and three years ago.

Australia farmers are carrying out one of the largest animal slaughters in history. Firing squads will dispose of 200 million sheep over the next year.

This is an emergency measure decreed to rescue a vital export industry by curtailing wool production. During the past 18 months, many of Australia's prime overseas customers backed off on wool purchases, leaving a glut of fleeces.

Two years ago, their wool was bringing as much as $4.81 per pound and production was stepped up. China, a big customer dropped out of the market after Beijing Tianenmen Square upheaval and Western credits were cut off.

Another influencing price factor was the improvement of Japan's synthetic fibers, which are much smoother and lightweight than their forerunners. The slaughter campaign will reduce flocks to 150 million, though for Australians it has the dimensions for tragedy. Historically the country rode to prosperity on the back of this biblical creature that typically can produce enough wool for four men's suits in a year.

Don't expect wool prices to improve anytime soon.

Prepare For Lambing

With the low margin of profits in the sheep business today, we need to spend time in preparing for lambing and prevent needless losses which may occur due to our carelessness.

Numerous studies indicate that approximately 40 percent of our lamb deaths occur at the ewes for lambing by shearing the udder and vulva area to remove wool tags. This will help keep the ewe cleaner and also be of great help to the lamb in birth.

Also, if lambing is to be in the barn, have a clean place ready for them. Some pens (about 4x5 feet) to confine the ewe with their newborn lambs should also be available.

As a rule, one or two days is enough confinement time for ewes with singles and two to three or four days may be necessary for multiple births. Ewes and lambs should be confined in small pens with their lambs as soon as possible after birth.

Knowing the signs of lambing and when help is needed is very important.

Ewes prefer to lamb alone. They may be restless, getting up and down often, raise the dock, or exhibit obvious straining.

Normal presentation of the lamb and deciding when to assist the ewe in lambing is important. Normal delivery time is about five hours (four hours of dilation and one hour actual delivery.) Delivery should be complete after about 30 minutes of hard labor.

Signs of lambing difficulty include prolonged straining with no sign of a water bag, prolonged straining after loss of the water bag but with no sign of the lamb, and incomplete lambing or partial delivery.

There aren't too many things you need to take with you when you go to assist a ewe that has lambing problems. The main things you will need are a bucket of water, preferably warm with mild disinfectant in it, a squeeze bottle of obstetrical lubricant and glove, or liquid soap and a couple lengths of bailing twine or similar rope. If you assist, wash the area around the vulva and use adequate lubricant.

Fence Maker Installs, Removes T-Posts

LITCHFIELD, Ill.— Worksaver, Inc. has developed a new Hydraulic Fence Maker, Model HFM-24, that is simple to operate and easy to attach, helping to reduce installation and operating time and saving labor.

Mounting consists of attaching he Fence Maker to the tractor's wbar and top link and connecting hydraulic lines. For operation, simply adjust top link for proper angle, place post into slot, strap post in with safety chains, and activate valve to push post into the ground.

Pomona Grange Celebrates 100

READING (Berks Co.) — The Berks County Pomona Grange recently kicked off a year-long celebration in honor of their 100th anniversary.

The Grange was founded on Feb. 28, 1891 by Edward K. Bohn of Wernersville.

The year-long festivities began with the March Pomona meeting, which was held at the Bernville Grange Hall. Pennsylvania State Master Bill Ringler was in attendance, as well as these state officers. Anna May Nauss, state treasurer; Steve Mohn, state assistant steward; and Martha Ebersole, state lady assistant steward.

Karen Mohn, Berks County Pomona lecturer, is coordinating the 100th anniversary activities.

The Pomona Grange has a collector plate available for $13.00. There are a limited number of plates available by contacting any Pomona member. A cookbook will also be available later in the year.

An old-fashioned picnic will be held in June at Camp Joy. The Pomona youth are in charge of this event.

The Grangers will be chancing off a quilt at the gala banquet to be held November 9 at the Leesport Auction. It will be an evening filled with dinner, dancing, and lots of grange friendships and fellowships.

The Berks County Pomona Grange is comprised of the 12 subordinate granges in Berks County.

Deere Products Earn Innovation Award

MOLINE, ILL.— Five John Deere agricultural products were among "The Agricultural Engineering 50" outstanding innovations awarded in product or systems technology, 1990 by "Agricultural Engineering, the magazine of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE).

Three of the products earning recognition are designed and manufactured at the John Deere Ottumwa Works, Ottumwa, IA. The other two are engineered and produced at the John Deere Des Moines Works, Ankeny, IA.

Each year "The AE50" recognizes innovations in technology that help farmers, processors, and equipment makers reduce costs, enhance quality, become more competitive, and improve profitability.

One of the Ottumwa Works award-winning products is the surface wrap attachment for the 435 and 535 round balers. It is an option that provides automatic wrapping of bales with a polyfilament mesh. Surface wrapped bales hold their shape and are protected from spoilage and weathering to better maintain the feeding value of the hay.

Another option for the 435 and 535 round balers also earned an award for John Deere and the Ottumwa Works. The bale push bar attachment improves baling speed and productivity by eliminating the need to back up to eject finished bales from the bale chamber. The push bar is mechanically linked to the hydraulic baler gate and requires no additional hydraulics or controls to operate.

Conditioning rolls over nine feet wide (110 inches) are key components of the third Ottumwa Works award-winning product, the 1600 mower/conditioner. The urethane conditioner rolls in the 1600 are molded to intermesh very accurately. This maintains even crimping and conditioning action across the entire width of the roll.

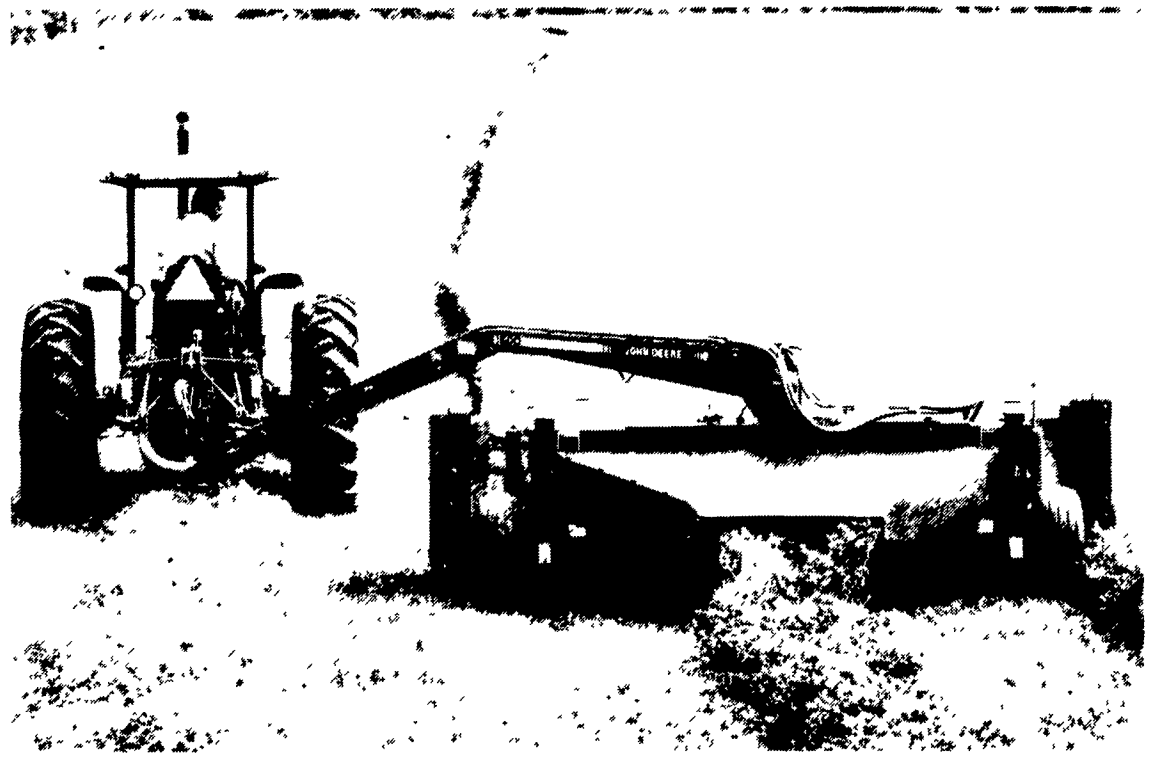
Accurate intermeshing, coupled with an easy-to-use clearance adjustment and added indentations in the rolls, helps operators set the conditioner to provide quality-boosting, rapid hay drying in a wide variety of crops and conditions.

The upper roll in the 1600 is lifted by a mechanical linkage when the machine is raised. This allows the operator to power out a plug or obstruction without leaving the tractor seat.

One of two Des Moines Works products that earned the award is a furrow opener for the John Deere 610 seeding tool. The new opener helps wheat growers and other cereal crop producers do soil-conserving, no-till planting in many soil types. The furrow opener also improves plant germination and vigor through accurately placing a narrow band of granular fertilizer between and below a split (paired) row of seeds.

The John Deere 600 series tandem disks also earned "The AE50" recognition. A new, cushioned, disk-blade middlebreaker cuts out the center balk of soil left by the two front disk gangs for a smooth soil profile across the entire working width of the 600 series disks. The disks offer an innovative hydraulic- motor-powered leveling mechanism. This option allows on-the-go fore-and-aft leveling from the tractor seat.

"The AE 50" award winners are judged by a panel of national engineering experts. The panel chooses developments that innovatively apply technology and are likely to advance the efficiency and productivity of food and agricultural technology.



The John Deere 1600 Mower/Conditioner is one of five John Deere products named to "The Agricultural Engineering 50" outstanding innovations in product or systems technology, 1900, awarded by "Agricultural Engineering" magazine.

PFA Leader Urges Congress To Protect Property Rights

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The leader of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) urged Congress to enact legislation to protect private property rights, repeal an assessment on dairy farmers, and reform the Legal Services Corporation.

Keith Eckel, president of the statewide farm organization, called for action during a breakfast meeting with Pennsylvania's congressional delegation and nearly 200 PFA members. A day earlier, the farmers had visited their representatives and senators for a face-to-face discussion of PFA's position on farm issues.

Eckel told lawmakers that federal wetlands regulations are fueling controversy over the constitutional rights of landowners versus government's right to regulate in the public interest.

"When land is condemned for a public school, the landowner is compensated for the loss of the land," Eckel said, "But, if a wetland is designated on private property on behalf of the public, the landowner suffers the financial loss." Eckel called for support of Senate Bill 50, the Private Property Rights Act of 1991. It would require federal agencies to limit the impact of regulations on private property under the Fifth Amendment, which prohibits "takings" without just compensation.

Pennsylvania dairymen suffered a dramatic price drop during 1990. Farm milk prices fell 22 percent while expenses increased about 3 percent. Making matters worse is a "dairy tax" of five cents per 100 pounds (CWT) on milk marketing by dairymen since January 1. The assessment, which is due to budget-cutting by Congress, will increase to 11.25 cents/CWT during 1992-95.

"Federal farm programs amount to a little more than one percent of the federal budget," Eckel said, "yet cuts in farm programs are two to three times higher than reductions in other areas of government." The dairy tax will do little to balance the federal budget, while its elimination could save dairymen an average of $5,131 over five years. PFA is calling for repeal of the assessment.

Eckel also called for reform of the Legal Services Corporation. "We want the program to return to its original intent of providing the day to day legal needs of the poor and indigent clients," Eckel said.

As it operates now, Eckel said, farmers who employ migrant or seasonal labor have been forced out of business, defending lawsuits over minor or correctable problems.

Simmental Ranks High In Pa. Bull Test

LIGONIER (Westmoreland Co.)— The final results are in at the Pennsylvania Performance Bull Test and Simmental.

A polled Simmental son of C&B Incumbant has not only topped all breeds with his 5.51 pounds average daily gain, but he has also broken a Pennsylvania Test Station record.

This top performer was bred and is owned by Dr. William Monsour of Laurel Valley Farm, Ligonier. He and 17 other top performing Simmental will sell along with the tops of other breeds at the Pennsylvania Performance Tested Bull Sale at the Penn State Ag Arena, State College, on March 29.

Test Director Glen Eberly can provide additional information at (814) 238-2527.

FARMER Fund Raiser Set For April

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — U.S. Representative Charles W. Stenholm (D-Texas) will speak at the statewide fund-raising dinner for Farmers Allied for Responsive More Effective Representation, (FARMER) on April 15 at the Harrisburg Hilton and Towers.

FARMER is the bi-partisan political action committee of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA). Proceeds from the banquet will be used to help elect friends of agriculture to the General Assembly.

Congressman Stenholm is a former cotton grower and agricultural teacher who was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives in 1979. Now in his sixth term, Stenholm is highly respected for his leadership in agriculture, health care, labor and federal budget issues.

Stenholm is chairman of the subcommittee on Livestock, Dairy and Poultry of the U.S. House Committee on Agriculture. He was appointed Deputy Majority Whip in the House in November 1990 and was seated on the House Budget Committee in January 1991. He also serves on the hospitals and health care subcommittee of the Veterans' Affairs Committee.

Rep. Stenholm is a strong proponent for reform of the Legal Services Corporation and punishment of animal rights terrorists and has been a prime sponsor of legislative efforts to accomplish both goals. He also was a principal sponsor of a proposed consututional amendment to require a balanced budget which came within seven votes of passage last year.

The FARMER fundraiser will begin with a social hour at 6 p.m. followed by dinner at 7 p.m. Tickets, at $125 per person or $175 with spouse, are available by contacting PFA's Governmental Relations Division at (717) 761-2740.

Foreign Markets Rate U.S. Soybeans

WASHINGTON, D.C.— Soybeans from the United States are arriving in better condition these days at European and Asian ports, but further improvements are needed, according to a U.S. Department of Agriculture study.

By the end of a four-year study, U.S. soybeans were reaching foreign destinations with fewer damaged kernels than at the start of the study. The study was conducted by USDA's Agricultural Research Service and Federal Grain Inspection Service.

Less damage means more high-quality salad or cooking oil can be refined from a shipment, said Timothy L. Mounts, research leader for food quality and safety at the ARS National Center for Agricultural Utilization Research at Peoria, Ill.

The study also highlighted the need to increase protein content of U.S. soybeans and to decrease the amount of foreign matter in U.S. bean shipments. Soybean shipments from Paraguay, Argentina, and Brazil generally contained lower levels of foreign matter, Mounts said.

But during the last two years of the study, he said, bean samples from Brazil, a major competitor of U.S. soybeans, consistently had more damaged kernels than American exports. The resulting refining losses were great enough to offset the advantage offered by the higher oil content of Brazilian beans.

He said the study's findings may spur efforts to improve grain handling and general crop quality through breeding and genetic engineering.

"We believe the competitive advantage of U.S. soybeans' lower refining losses could be strengthened," he said.

One step to reduce these losses is being taken by ARS chemist Gary R. List at the Peoria center. He has identified the soy enzyme phospholipase D as the main culprit in oil refining losses, especially in beans handled roughly before reaching the processor.

The enzyme may increase losses during oil refining from the normal 2 to 4 percent to 20 percent, depending mostly on how well the soybeans were handled before processing, according to a report in the latest issue of Agricultural Research magazine.

List said the enzyme interferes with degumming, the first step in refining. Degumming frees crude oils of phosphatides including lecithins, gums, and other fat-like phosphorus-containing compounds.

Nonhydratable phosphatides (NHPs) formed by the action of phospholipase D escape removal during degumming and remain with the oil until further processing.

List and his colleagues are studying the mechanisms that allow NHPs to form. They hope to find a way to precondition soybeans before shipment or just before oil extraction to minimize refining losses.

Currently, List said, the only good way to stem the activity of phospholipase D is to handle the soybeans gently through the marketing process at the lowest practical moisture level. But beans that are too dry may split, complicating the oil extraction step and yielding poor quality oil.

Refining losses from both high- and low-quality beans someday may be reduced through genetic engineering advances to thwart phospholipase D's activity after harvest, List said. Biotechnology also could help improve the quality of finished soybean oil by modifying oil composition and by eliminating certain enzymes in the bean.

Dairy Of Distinction Seeks Well-Kept Dairy Farms For 1991 Beautification Recognition Program

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

COVINGTON (Tioga Co.)—The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, Inc., is ready to receive applications for 1991. This program rewards clean, well-kept farmsteads to help with consumer acceptance of dairy products in the store.

State President Dan Baker, dairyman from Covington, Tioga County, said the program has received great acceptance in the past and officers look forward to a good response again this year. "There are plenty of good looking dairy farms out there that have not been judged," Baker said. "And even those who have entered the selection process in past years, should enter again."

The program provides rewards of recognition to producers who maintain attractive production sites. This recognition benefits the entire dairy industry, as well as individual dairymen. Not only does the favorable publicity generated by the program in the general press help bring modern farm practices to the attention of urban people, farmers use the distinction to promote their own operation or seek and hire farm labor.

Paul Nichols, the secretary for the Pennsylvania program, said applications may be sent in now to apply for the award. Deadline for applications is April 15, 1991. Judging takes place in the month of May and is based on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds and surroundings. The states are divided into districts and a local committee oversees the program in each district. A team of judges designated by the local committee visits each farm and uses a score sheet to rate each farm. In Pennsylvania, in addition to this team of judges, the sanitarian for the farm's cooperative or dealer-handler is asked to be part of the judging process.

"One of the things I always tell people is that even though they may not now have the most fancy place, they can work toward the principles of the Dairy of Distinction program," Nichols said. "By doing this, they work toward a goal that encourages consumers to use more dairy products."

Lancaster Farmning to each winning farm in the Pennsylvania program.

"As a dairy farmer, you work hard all year long, taking care of your farm," said Helen Fountain, program executive secretary. "In addition to managing your herd, there are lawns to mow, flowers to plant, and overall maintenance to keep farm buildings looking great. You deserve to be recognized for all the hard work, dedication and pride you put into your farmstead.

"It's time to apply for you and your farm to receive the coveted honor of Dairy of Distinction. This award is based on the concept that attractive farms enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk, thereby stimulating milk sales and encouraging public support for the dairy industry."

Active dairy farms in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania are eligible to apply for the award. Criteria for Dairy of Distinction awards include: clean and attractively finished buildings; neat landscaping, ditches, roads and lands; and well-maintained fences. Cleanliness of animals, barnyard, feed areas, as well as manure management, are also taken into consideration.

Applications are available from each state's program secretary or local cooperative extension. In New York, contact Evelyn Lightfoote, 3053 Depew Road, Stanley, N.Y. 14561. Phone: (716) 526-6654. In New Jersey, contact Angust Knispel, RD 1, Box 325, Pittstown, NJ 08867. Phone: 201) 735-4989. In Pennsylvania, contact Paul Nichols, American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, 1853 East Third St. Williamsport, PA 17701. Phone: (717) 323-2552.

Singing Brook Farms in Bedford County and owned by the Obie Snider family at Imler is an example of the farms that were designated Dairy of Distinction last year. Over the last four year, 363 farms in Pennsylvania have received the recognition.

Wet brewers grain is more than a good feed. It's a good business ingredient.

Each day, up to 100,000 U.S. dairy cows feed on rations containing wet brewers grain. That's because their owners know it minimizes feed costs while it maximizes production.

Wet brewers grain is a high-protein feed ingredient. It's always fresh, because it's delivered directly to your dairy. It fits into most programs, is easy to handle, and easy to store.

Call us today. One of our professional feed consultants will help you work wet brewers grain into your ration, so you can make it a profitable ingredient for your business.

THE SEED FOR FEED Golden Acres®

TE HAYGRAZER II

HAYGRAZER II is the summer annual that all hybrid sorghum sudans are compared to. Properly managed, it makes more TDN per acre than any crop you care to mention. It is a multi-purpose crop that can be used for grazing, hay, green chop, haylage, green manure, or for a cover crop.

HAYGRAZER II grows extremely fast, sometimes 2" per day under ideal conditions. It produces enormous amounts of lush green foliage. After cutting, each stalk produces 5-10 tillers which provide amazing regrowth.

York Farm Credit Provides Equipment Leasing

YORK (York Co.) — Farmers in York, Adams, Cumberland, Franklin, Perry and Fulton counties now have another service available to them through their local York Farm Credit office.

The York Farm Credit Association has expanded its line of services by including new and used equipment leasing as an alternative for customers seeking equipment financing.

"We are excited about this new service," said John Mattilio, agribusiness account executive of York Farm Credit. "We believe our customers will be able to realize a great improvement in their cash flow by leasing new and used equipment and do it without disturbing existing loan agreements."

Those who use equipment leasing find that it offers many benefits. It helps the lessee improve cash flow because a lease provides 100 percent financing.

There is no down payment. Rental payments may be made monthly or annually, whichever best fits cash flow patterns.

Rates are fixed for the entire lease term, so there is no need to deal with fluctuating interest rates.

The leasing program offered by York Farm Credit allows eligible borrowers of the Farm Credit System to work with local dealers in the selection of their equipment. When price and delivery dates are negotiated, the equipment user contacts the association for lease pricing.

The standard leases offered through this program are 48-72 months in duration. During that time, only 80 percent or 90 percent of the original cost of the equipment is amortized, keeping payments low. At the end of the lease term, the lease may be renewed for an additional term, the equipment may be purchased for the remaining 80 percent or 90 percent, or returned with no further obligation.

"We have seen an increased demand for equipment leasing in our trading area," said Mattilio, "and we believe that this streamlined lease program offered by our association will meet the needs of most of our farmers' requests."

For more information, call the York farm Credit Office nearest you or call John Mattilio at (717) 792-3652.

Md. Dept. Of Ag Gives Grain Checkoff Approval

ANAPOLIS, Md.— Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Wayne A. Cawley, Jr. has recently given approval for the Maryland Grain Producers Association (MGPA) to hold a state referendum for an all-grain checkoff.

"As state and federal budgets decline, it is becoming increasingly more important for commodity organizations to take the leadership and promote their own products," Cawley said.

The grain referendum will be held on July 26 in each county cooperative extension office. All grain producers will be eligible to vote. If the vote is in favor of the checkoff, collection of one half of one percent of the net value will be collected starting on October 1. Soybeans are already under a checkoff program.

"This grain checkoff will help us promote the industry," said MGPA President Lawrence Meeks.

"Just 25 years ago as much as 90 percent of the grain produced was fed to farm based livestock and poultry. Today only half of the grain crop is utilized on the farm. We had better get out there and develop new markets if we want to stay ahead of the game," Meeks said.

According to Drew Stabler, chairman of the subcommittee organizing the referendum, there is much potential for using grain in the manufacturing sector of the economy. Ethanol fuel, biodegradable packaging, corn sweeteners, building materials, textiles and plastics are a few of the examples where grain can be used.

The MGPA is now working to develop details of the referendum. For more information, contact Drew Stabler, (301) 253-3824 or Lynne Hoot, (301) 956-5771.

"Farming is a big investment...

Time is valuable. An equipment breakdown in the field, delayed supplies, or sudden weather changes mean lost dollars, without quick reaction. Our GE mobile radio system gives us greater control and coordination over our operation. It's a farmer's friend."

Roger C Garber
James M Garber & Sons

Why are farmers turning to mobile radio? During planting and harvesting your farm and equipment need to be operating at full potential. General Electric Mobile Radio Systems provide quick, cost effective communications from home or field. It's like having another "farm hand" to help with the chores.

the 2ND ALL-NEW TRACTOR from CASE IH...

This Tractor wasn't just built for farmers, it was built by farmers...

When CASE IH was ready to market this tractor in the summer of 1988, they asked a group of farmers to tell them what they would like to see changed to make it a better tractor. Over a dozen suggestions were offered. CASE IH delayed the introduction of the MAXXUM until they had made the improvements recommended by the farmers. The result: MAXXUM. The tractor designed and built with YOU IN MIND.

HARVEST TEC SKID FEEDER-40

The SKID FEEDER - 40 is designed to turn your skid steer loader into a cross between a feed cart and a feed wagon. Now you can move feed from your silos and storage bins to anyplace on your farmstead without making a major investment. The SKID FEEDER - 40 discharges feed from the bottom of its hopper as you drive forward for efficient bunk or alley feeding. Consider the time and work the SKID FEEDER - 40 could save you in:

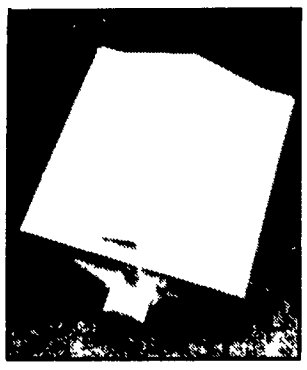
- Moving silage and other feeds to side buildings and pens.
- Feeding in tight spots both inside and outside.
- Transferring TMR's to locations not served by automatic equipment.



FEATURES...

- 40 cubic feed hopper capacity (holds up to 1200 pounds of feed).
- Feeds outside the wheel track of the skid steer loader.
- Hopper can be raised for feeding into a bunk.
- Quick attachment plates available for most skid steer loaders.

TORQUE AMPLIFIERS & CLUTCHES

★ New Wider Heavy Duty Super Sprag 1-1/32" Wide
★ 5 Yr. Warranty Against Sprag Failure
★ Introductory Price $695.00

We are pleased to announce a major improvement in TA strength & performance backed up by a warranty that is unmatched in the industry. The 5/8" width Dana sprag which we have used over the past 10 years has proven its ability to perform under the most adverse of conditions and has achieved results that have sent our competitors scrambling to keep up. By increasing the width of the sprag to 1-1/32" and caging it in a heavier frame, we now have an unmatched shock load capacity and dramatically raised our load carrying ability Our studies have shown that 90% of TA problems are directly related to sprag failure We feel that we now have the strongest sprag & best rebuilt TA available and it will be warranted as follows:

*5 yr - 100% parts & labor against sprag
*2 ry - 100% parts & labor on remainder of unit
Our standard heavy duty TA is still available at $645.00 and caries a *2 yr. - 100% parts & labor warranty.
* Certain restrictions apply and there will be a maximum labor pay-out of $450 00
We also have units & parts available to rebuild old style TA's, including ramp & carrier sets.
NEW price on ramps & carriers - $200.00

Call Triple H Equip. For Details...

Wasting chemical and yield on hills and headlands is a thing of the past with Vicon's new flow proportioning and boom compensation system. Application rate remains constant even when ground speed varies or individual boom sections are shut off. That means better coverage with lower input costs.

It is available on all Vicon trailer sprayers with tank capacities up to 785 U.S. gal. (3000 litres) and automatic stabilizing booms from 28' to 62'. There's also a choice of hydraulic or manual folding booms and a range of accessories that make crop spraying less of a chore

When planning your forage programs this year, remember that your main objective is to "store the plant and remove it from storage in as good condition as possible." THE UPRIGHT SILO HAS NEVER BEEN EQUALLED IN ITS ABILITY TO DO THIS!!

As herds become larger and labor is becoming more costly and scarce, there is more need to cut time requirements for all parts of the operation. The silo, or a combination of silos can be a key in reducing time spent harvesting, storing, and feeding your herd. "A properly managed upright silo is one of the best investments that a dairy farmer can make." Your best choice is a POURED CONCRETE SOLLENBERGER SILO...

All Panels (Many Colors) Available With 3 To 7 Day Delivery

PLY-FOIL is a very efficient form of insulation. In application after application it has proven to be extremely effective at controlling heat gain/loss, thus significantly reducing heating and cooling costs. PLY-FOIL Insulation uses an aluminum foil to reflect up to 97% of the radiant heat.

PLY-FOIL BENEFITS

PLY-FOIL products are clean, lightweight, and non-toxic; are unaffected by changes in humidity; do not shrink; and once installed require no maintenance. They do not promote the growth of fungi or bacteria, and provide no nesting support for rodent or insect pests. PLY-FOIL, which has a Class A/Class 1 fire rating, meets the fire and smoke safety requirements of most federal, state and local building codes.

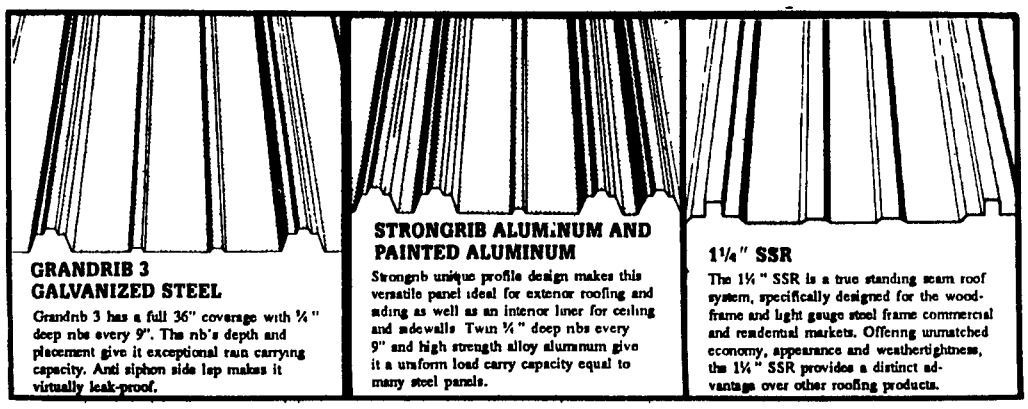
The right metal roofing and siding for your project.



GRANDRIB 3 GALVANIZED STEEL
Grandrib 3 has a full 36" coverage with ¾" deep ribs every 9". The rib's depth and placement give it exceptional rain carrying capacity. Anti siphon side lap makes it virtually leak-proof.

STRONGRIB ALUMINUM AND PAINTED ALUMINUM
Strongrib unique profile design makes this versatile panel ideal for exterior roofing and siding as well as an interior liner for ceiling and sidewalls. Twin ¾" deep ribs every 9" and high strength alloy aluminum give it a uniform load carry capacity equal to many steel panels.

1¼" SSR
The 1¼" SSR is a true standing seam roof system, specifically designed for the wood-frame and light gauge steel frame commercial and residential markets. Offering unmatched economy, appearance and weathertightness, the 1¼" SSR provides a distinct advantage over other roofing products.
